To Meet Confucius, Lindbergh, Ford, Marie, Cheap at $100,000, General Motors in Atlanta.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1927).

IN China a labor party is trying to seize Canton, martial law is declared and more of China's 400,000,000 join Confucius, and perhaps hear what he thinks of fighting China.

WHEN Bertrand Russell visited and wrote about the Chinese, he concluded that their salvation would be to wait, endure, let the whites kill themselves off. Then the yellows would rule.

China is not taking that advice. Yellows are as foolish as whites about killing.

STUDENTS at Chicago's Northwestern University vote Lindbergh and Ford "the biggest men of the year." Queen Marie leads the women.

RUTH ELDER, charming young lady, attracted attention and newspapers gave her at least $100,000,000 worth of free advertising. Now the intelligent Loew company gives her $1,000 a day for 100 days to tell about it in vaudeville.

FOR $100,000 intelligent Mr. Nicholas M. Schenck gets the benefit of $100,000,000 worth of publicity.

Madame Curie could not get $100,000 for telling about radium. The people want action.

GENERAL MOTORS announces the establishment of a new plant in Atlanta, Georgia. This is a tribute to the automobile buying power of the south, the outstanding position of Atlanta as a distributing center and the common sense of Mr. Sloan and others that run General Motors.

Atlanta's Chevrolet plant will give work at good wages to many. Mr. Knudsen, head of the Chevrolet company, says: "A plant in Atlanta became not only a possibility, but a necessity."

GERMANY signs the League of Nations agreement "affording protection to women workers before and after childbirth." A woman would be allowed to quit work six weeks before the birth of a child and remain away six weeks afterward, with pay and free medical attention.

That sounds almost like civilization—governments compelling employers to do for women what intelligent horse owners did for mares a thousand years ago.

A TAX ASSESSOR at Washington, D. C., values White House building and grounds at $22,000,000, the capitol, $52,000,000, State, War and Navy buildings, $13,500,000, Treasury Building, $23,000,000.

Uncle Sam should get some flying machines to protect all that property. A dozen bombing enemy fliers could soon knock those buildings around the ears of men that live or work in them.

A NEW high mark in United States finance and prosperity. National banks, including Alaska and Hawaii, report to the comptroller of the currency, resources amounting to $27,217,824,000, beating all records.

This doesn't include trust companies, and other great money institutions.

This is a rich country, getting richer every minute. Its citizens earn each year 10 billions more than it costs them to live. Don't sell the United States short.

A MOTHER and father hid $60 in a bureau drawer, telling only their 13-year-old daughter, Christina, where the money was. It disappeared. Three times the mother accused the child. The girl denied that she had stolen the money, then drank carbolic acid and may die. Not all parents realize a child's intensity of feeling.

MEMBERS of the clergy will discuss the drama today and listen to Mr. Otto H. Kahn tell about it. Producers of certain plays say they hope the "Church and Drama Association" will attack their plays. "We would put a pastor on the payroll if he would denounce us."

A dog will gladly dig up a decaying bone if you told him where to find it. Many citizens unfortunately will attend a rotten play if you tell them where it is.

LORD CECIL says the British have "banged the doors" on any navy agreement with the United States. Thanks to Britain for encouraging the United States to mind its own business and make its own rules for its own navy.

A country that could manage itself with fewer than 4,000,000 population should manage itself with 115,000,000 population.

THE WEATHER

RAIN FOILS BOMB PLOT

THE Peach WALL STREET CLOSE

BLOWUP AT MINE IS AVERTED

What is believed to have been an attempt to wreck No. 3 mine of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company, Molenauer, was frustrated when rain extinguished the fuse of a bomb placed under a large drum at the mouth of the mine. A second bomb was found in a sewer nearby.

Justice of the Peace John Popp, Jr., Castle Shannon, turned the bombs over to Chief County Detective George W. Murren today and they were sent to the United States Bureau of Mines for examination.

The bomb was said to have burned within an inch of the container holding the explosive. The second bomb, evidently not lighted, is believed to contain a liquid explosive.

200 Hurt In Capital Tornado

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The national capital turned today to the task of bringing order out of the tangle of tornado-strewn wreckage in the eastern section of the city.

Sweeping out of the South on the wings of a 53-mile gale, the twister left a swath of destruction late yesterday from Alexandria, Va., to Hyattsville, Md. It unroofed houses, felled trees, overturned automobiles and tore down transmission wires.

A Negro woman was struck and killed by lightning, more than 200 were injured and property damage was estimated at several million dollars in Washington alone.

The federal and municipal governments and the Red Cross were quick to meet the situation. The War Department immediately volunteered the services of all its army forces in the vicinity of Washington, the Red Cross dispatched its relief workers to the scene and the local authorities mobilized police and firemen for service in the stricken area.

Schoolhouses were thrown open to residents whose homes had been made uninhabitable and the Red

Scores of persons were injured as a 100-mile-an-hour wind swept through Washington, D. ORDER KING ARRESTED IN FRAUD

The grand jury, sitting in Criminal Court, recommended the indictment of William L. King, former executive secretary, and two ex-league investigators, Abe Weinberg and Sol Rosenberg.

The move, one of the most surprising grand jury actions in years, came a few hours after District Attorney Gardner had ordered the arrest of King and the sleuths on conspiracy charges based on King's confession that the trio faked evidence in at least 10 liquor prosecutions.

The recommendation came in the grand jury's presentment to Judge

Zahniser Admits 'He Knew'

Lying propped in bed in his home, 5744 Holden street, today, the Rev. Dr. Charles R. Zahniser, director and a leading spirit in the Citizens League admitted that he and Rev. Dr. J. Alvin Orr, president, were in constant communication with William L. King during the former league executive's October "disapearance."

Other admissions made by Dr. Zahniser were:

Charges that much of the League's evidence was "faked" by King and his investigators were made to him on October 31.

That he did not make this known to members of the board of directors other than Dr. Orr until King's return.

That dissension over King continuing as executive head of the League developed after his "blunders" of last summer and "several members of the board" felt then

SHIP CAPTAIN JAILED WHEN HE REFUSED TO RUN BLOCKADE IN GULF

Gomez, Recently Executed By Mexican President in Revolution, Had Command of Stored Contraband of War.

By JOHN PAGE.

(Copyright, 1927, by The Washington Herald.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—The brief glimpses the American people have had behind the scenes in Mexico and Nicaragua have given but the vaguest idea of the steps taken by President Calles to install a puppet Liberal anti-American government in Nicaragua last year, or of what happened to those who crossed him in his desires.

The Hearst papers today expose the strong-arm methods resorted to by President Calles, the Mexican Executive, in getting rifles and cartridges into the hands of his Liberal allies, using a ship in the service of the Mexican Government in which to transport them, and summarily removing the captain of that ship for refusing to accept the mission, partly because he was afraid of American warships and partly because of bad treatment at the hands of Nicaraguan Liberals on a previous gun-running expedition. This ship's captain subsequently was arrested and disappeared.

The amazing scope of the Mexican President's activities in putting a Liberal army in the field in Nicaragua to overthrow its pro-American government and thus prevent construction of the proposed transcontinental canal by the United States; his efforts to convert his own people and Central Americans to Communism, and to reward American radical writers financially for propaganda in favor of his own government have been revealed in previous articles. But while as busy as could be in his various pro-Bolshevist propaganda measures, he remembered that his friends in Nicarauga must have rifles enough to go around and plenty of cartridges, if they were to overthrow the pro-American Conservative government, which had been holding its own pretty well in the field.

Lands Arms in Nicaragua

Several small shipments of arms and munitions had been landed in Nicaragua during the months of August, September and October of 1926, principally by the Mexican ships Superior and Tropica, and the Nicaraguan Foam. These shipments were sufficient to get the revolutionary campaign underway smartly, but insufficient to give the rebel forces under Dr. Juan Bautista Sacasa that superiority in rifles, machine guns and field artillery necessary to insure triumph over the inadequately equipped government troops.

President Calles, responding to the repeated pleas of his Nicaraguan allies for more arms, caused a great store of war material to be collected at the Mexican Gulf port of Vera Cruz, ready for shipment at the end of November.

On December 1 he directed that 3,000 boxes of this material be shipped from Vera Cruz on the Mexican steamship Superior, formerly the Tamaulipas. The name had been changed in an effort to disguise her identity as a ship belonging to a steamship line controlled by the Mexican Government. Gen. Jose Alvarez, the Mexican Executive's chief of staff, sent a telegram to Gen. Arnulfo R. Gomez, chief of military operations in the state of Vera Cruz, ordering the sailing of the Superior. The English text follows:

"Arnulfo R. Gomez, Chief of Military Operations in Vera Cruz.

"By order of the Citizen President of the Republic you will direct Naval Captain Francisco Villanueva, commanding the National Steamship Superior, to receive aboard under the immediate custody of Francisco Troncoso, 3,000 boxes with war material, which will be transported according to orders to be given by the said Troncoso, to a Central American port. Due precautions should be taken in the transportation of this material to avoid any encounter with the patrol-ships of the United States Navy.

"You will order that Capt. Villanueva shall make a careful selection of his ship's crew, in order to avoid desertions or the giving out of information concerning the contents of the cargo under his custody. The said captain will be held responsible for any mishap in the performance of this mission, confided to him by the Presidency.

"Please acknowledge receipt of this Order and advise of the departure from Vera Cruz of the ship referred to in this message.

"The Chief of the President's Staff,
"General J. Alvarez."

partly to fear of an encounter with American warships and partly to bad treatment at the hands of the Nicaraguan rebels on a previous arms-bearing voyage. He added that Capt. Villanueva had been arrested for insubordination and the command of the Superior offered to another ship's captain, Hiram Toledo, subject to the approval of Calles. Toledo, he asserted, was a captain who had lost his commission for some unstated cause, and asked only that it be restored to him in the event of his success in landing the arms shipment. The English text follows:

"Citizen President of the Republic,

"The National Palace, Mexico, D. F.

"I have the honor to inform you that Capt. Francisco Villanueva, commanding the National Steamship Superior, refuses to sail with the cargo to Nicaragua under the conditions which you directed me to demand from him. In view his negative I have ordered his detention for lack of discipline and arranged that Capt. Hiran Toledo, now here with commission cancelled, shall accept the mission under conditions you outlined. He requires only that his old grade in the National Navy be recognized if he carries out mission successfully. I have promised Toledo recognition of his old standing provided superior officials consent to confer him mission, Cargo and crew aboard ship, everything ready to sail at first order.

"Respectfully, General of Division and Chief of Military Operations.

A. R. Gomez.

Gen. Alvarez replied the following day (December 2) in the name of the President, approving the arrest of Villanueva and giving command of the Superior to Capt. Toledo. The English text follows:

"Arnulfo R. Gomez, Chief of Military Operations in Vera Cruz.

"Your telegram No. 285 to the Citizen President of the Republic, dated yesterday.

"By order of the President you will please inform Capt. Hiran Toledo that, in accord with his agreement with you, the Citizen President of the Republic recognizes his old standing in the National Navy, always provided he carries out without any mishap the mission confided to him.

"He will leave to your judgment the selection of the ship's crew, in order that the influence of Villanueva on the personnel shall not result in mutinies which would be disastrous for the success of the expedition.

"You will order that Capt. Villanueva be sent to Mexico City to be imprisoned in Santiago (Santiago Tlaltelolco, the military prison, where death sentences are carried out secretly) and subjected to the process he merits.

"The Chief of the President's Staff

"General J. Alvarez.

Mexican Gunboat Escorts

Gen. Gomez replied the same day that everything had been arranged as the President desired, and that the Superior would sail early on the morning of December 3, escorted by the Mexican Gunboat Agua Prieta, as far as the coast of Yucatan. The text follows:

"To the Citizen President of the Republic,

"The National Palace, Mexico, D. F.

"Your code telegram No. 7319. I have already ordered delivery of Villanueva to Mexico City. Troncoso has duly received materials, everything in readiness to sail early hour tomorrow with selected crew. The Agua Prieta will escort ship (Superior) to Puerto Morelos on the coast of Yucatan and return. I await your orders regarding war material remaining in this port.

"Respectfully, General of Division and Chief of Military Operations.

A. R. Gomez.

"Dec. 2, 1926.

The Superior's huge cargo of war materials was landed in the vicinity of Pearl Lagoon, on the Nicaraguan Atlantic Coast, almost under the very guns of the American warships patroling the shore in the hope of scaring her off by their mere presence. Capt. Toledo refused to be bluffed, however, and landed his cargo. He was resolved that nothing less than physical force should stop him, and Admiral Latimer's instructions from Washington at that time were not broad enough to permit the use of force.

A fortnight later, under more comprehensive instructions from Washington, Latimer sunk a great part of the shipment, including 2,000,000 rifle cartridges, but not before the Liberal forces under Dr. Sacasa had won a battle giving him control of the Atlantic Coast. His army was equipped largely with Mexican arms and munitions landed by the Superior, which gave them a great advantage over the poorly armed government troops.

Capt. Toledo returned to Mexico in triumph, reporting personally to President Calles on December 30. Toledo delivered to Calles a letter from Sacasa, who by then had established his "government" at Puerto Cabezas, on the Nicaraguan Atlantic Coast. Dr. Sacasa wanted to know whether the Mexican Government would continue supporting him in the face of the State Department's constantly stiffening attitude, and requested additional funds for necessary expenses.

Pressure on U. S. Senators

Calles replied, substantially as follows: That Dr. Sacasa had done well thus far and the Mexican Government was disposed to support him in all respects, counting on friends of Mexico in the United States to bring sufficient pressure to bear on the State Department and certain senators to keep the American Government from intervening militarily, and that in his opinion anything short of military intervention must fail of success in sustaining the Diaz Government in Nicaragua, because by then the Sacasa forces must be far better equipped for war than the troops at the disposal of Diaz.

Calles urged Sacasa not to be dismayed at the attitude assumed by Admiral Latimer, but, if necessary, to re-establish his capital at some point in the interior. He then supplied Capt. Toledo with $50,000 in American bills and instructed him to deliver both money and letter to Sacasa.

Journalistic ethics cause the Hearst newspapers at this point to state that they have not the text of the Calles letter just cited, or of the Sacasa letter to which it replies. We have obtained a verbal summary of their contents from a Mexican official in constant contact with President Calles, but cannot reveal his name because of his present high position. The high source from which we received these summaries and the circumstances that they dovetail so perfectly with established and related facts, we believe, justifies their publication.

(These revelations of Mexico's hand in the Nicaraguan affair will be continued in the Sun-Telegraph tomorrow.)

Cross and the Army supplied cots and blankets. A supply of tarpaulins for the protection of the interior of the unroofed homes was made available by the fire department.

Only the eastern half of the city felt the effects of the tornado. The western half, at the height of the storm, pursued its usual routine, unaware of the havoc being wrought on the other side of the capitol.

In Alexandria, the Red Cross reported that 25 were in a serious condition at hospitals and that 75 had been treated for injuries in their homes. Seventy-five buildings and dwelling houses were damaged and property loss was estimated at $500,000.

Half a million dollars' damage was done at the Anacostia Naval Air Station, while, by a freak of the elements, the property of the Army flying unit just across Bolling Field went unscathed. Eight Navy seaplanes were wrecked, a hangar unroofed and barrack buildings shaken. Damage at Washington Navy Yard was estimated at $100,000.

More than a hundred roofs were ripped from Washington buildings. These included a portable school house, but its pupils escaped unhurt.

The weather bureau declared the storm the worst that Washington has experienced within the 50 years covered by its records. The tornado, it said, had its origin in a waterspout down the Potomac, adding that there is very little difference fundamentally between the two phenomena beyond the fact that one originates over water and the other over land.

KING'S ARREST ORDERED

Macfarlane as a request that the District Attorney draw up an indictment and present it to the grand jurors.

KING'S ACT "OUTRAGE"

The grand jury's action stunned observers. It moved for the indictment on charges of conspiracy to indict on a District Attorney's bill, an action which precludes a preliminary hearing before an alderman and moves the cases up to criminal court calendar.

Earlier in the day, District Attorney Gardner, indignant that King should have stooped to fraud in preparation of his cases after bitterly attacking law-enforcement agencies, described the King program as "an outrage," which should not be passed over by the law.

Three former investigators for the league reported at the courthouse today as Gardner prepared to present 36 league prosecutions to the November grand jury.

The sleuths, Eugene Morgan and Ralph and Arthur Kemmerling, were there to testify that the cases they had investigated were based on actual evidence and not on fraud, as were some 16 prosecutions admittedly faked by King and Agents Rosenberg and Weinberg.

King, who left here Tuesday morning for Des Moines to resume his law practice, left behind a signed statement in which he confessed having faked liquor purchases in some 19 establishments investigated and prosecuted by Weinberg and Rosenberg, who were brought here from the East.

King told of how, upon learning that the two sleuths had not actually made "buys," he had procured through other investigators liquor which he presented to the prohibition department as that bought in the alleged gambling dives.

TO DISCUSS PROSECUTION

Whether King and league investigators involved in the "faking of evidence" are to be prosecuted will depend upon the outcome of a meeting today between District Attorney Gardner and United States Attorney John D. Meyer. The league itself does not intend to bring any charges against King and his investigators, Abe Weinberg and Sol Rosenberg, as far as can be learned.

Gardner said yesterday that he could not see where he was able to prosecute the three for perjury under the state laws, but he was considering whether they were liable under other laws for manufacturing evidence. Attorney Meyer is endeavoring to determine whether a Federal law has been violated. This probably will be done after the conference today.

An audit of the league's financial standing and a grand jury investigation of its activities here since it was organized is to be asked by Director James M. Clark of the Public Safety Department, the director said yesterday. Clark said he would call on Gardner today and ask that the investigation be made by the present grand jury.

Arthur Kemmerling, one of the league's investigators yesterday charged that a "high official" of the league knew that faked evidence had been used and had tried to keep the fraud secret. The league official was told of this matter October 31, a few minutes before a meeting of the league's executive board, and his answer was a threat of arrest to the investigator who supplied him with the information.

CLARK AFTER MEYER

The wrath of Public Safety Director James M. Clark descended heavily upon the head of the United States District Attorney John D. Meyer in another outgrowth of the activities of the Citizens League and its former secretary.

Clark incensed that King should have been allowed to leave the city after confessing that he had faked evidence in 19 of the liquor prosecutions, demanded to know why Meyer had not arrested the disillusioned vice crusader.

"Meyer knew," Clark charged, "four days before King left town that the league investigators had made statements on the faked evidence. Why didn't he arrest the criminal?"

Clark revealed that he intended to ask Meyer that very question at a special scheduled conference.

Mr. Meyer, however, said he knew of no conference scheduled with Clark. He added that his statement yesterday—that the question of law violation was one for his office to consider and decide later—still stood.

The words were hardly out of the mouth of Safety Director Clark before Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh flashed a letter purported to have been written by King's wife to Ruth Parnot, former League secretary, on November 13 from Des Moines, Mrs. King's home, to Kansas City, site of the Parnot residence.

King was described by his wife as "a dirty pup," Walsh said. Mrs. King wanted to know, Walsh read, how many times her husband has been host to Ruth and just what relations existed between them.

SEARCH FOR KING FAILS; WIFE WANTS DIVORCE

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 18.—Pittsburgh officials attempting to reach William L. King, former Iowa legislator and deposed secretary of the Citizens League there, who confessed he was the leader of a plot to fake evidence against alleged law violators, met with failure today.

King, whose disappearance from Pittsburgh in the midst of a liquor graft investigation, led to his resignation as executive secretary of the vice crusading organization, was reported to have arrived in Des Moines at 9 p. m. Wednesday. He was said to have conferred with his wife relative to a divorce only to disappear again.

Mrs. King today declared she was determined to divorce King.

ADMITS BEING IN RENO

"I haven't seen King at all lately and I don't expect to see him," she said. Continuing a tirade against the man who will be her husband for but a short time longer, Mrs. King said that previously King had come to Reno, Nev., to prevent her securing a divorce, but that nothing should stop her now.

"King came out to Reno after me and tried to stop me from getting a divorce, but I'm going to get one anyway."

Mrs. King refused to tell where she would file suit and when asked if she had already done so refused to answer the question.

Y. W. C. A. Beau Tax Brings $1,485 For Drive

Every young man who calls on a girl there is assessed for his visit. He pays 25 cents for an audience in the high back chairs or the lounge. If he desires the privacy of the parlor the tax is 50 cents. For a mere call he is required to pay a dime.

The "beau" tax and receipts from rummage sales and other enterprises have netted the home $1,485 thus far for contribution to the $100,000 drive of the Brooklyn Y. W. C. A.

TANK BLAST CLUE HUNT FAILS

The death of workmen employed in repairing the Equitable Gas Company tank which exploded Monday and the terrific force of the blast make it virtually impossible to determine the conditions of the tank at the time of the explosion, it was indicated yesterday by expert investigators who completed an inspection of the ruins.

No formal report of the investigation of Coroner William J. McGregor and a committee representing the Philadelphia Company, who visited the scene, has yet been made and many believe that the cause of the disaster never will be known definitely. The probers went over the scene of the explosion and also the ruins of the Pittsburgh Clay Pot Company, in which bodies of workmen are still buried.

The list of dead stands at 24, with nine employes of the pottery still unaccounted for. Two employes of the Ritter-Conley Company are still missing. The work of removing debris has been held up due to the rain.

A check on the valves leading to the wrecked tank is being made by engineers and officials of the United States Bureau of Mines, co-operating with the investigators in effort to determine the cause of the blast. A. W. Robertson, president of the Philadelphia Company, yesterday visited Mayor Charles H. Kline and expressed appreciation for the city's work at the disaster.

A number of property owners and real estate agents yesterday responded to the appeal of Mayor Kline and offered to donate their unoccupied buildings on the North Side to the use of the homeless for a month.

The Stanley-Davis-Clark Corporation will take a collection at all theaters, including the Alvin, Pitt and Nixon tonight, for the relief of the tank explosion victims and sufferers. Boy Scouts will be in charge at all theaters to canvass the audience and will take charge of the collections.

The Pittsburgh Lions Club, which has 117 members and holds its weekly noonday luncheons at the Fort Pitt Hotel, made a special drive this week for aid for North Side sufferers, to be administered through the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Red Cross.

On Wednesday President D. A. Garber of the club sent a personal telegram to each member asking that clothing be brought to the Thursday noon luncheon at the Fort Pitt. The 65 members who attended brought and reported gifts of sufficient clothing to fill seven big trucks.

A live Thanksgiving turkey was auctioned at the luncheon and brought donations of cash aggregating more than $300. The cash and clothing were turned over to the Red Cross for distribution as needed.

MARGIE GLEASE

When Margie, 22, of 204 East North avenue, gave the air to her boy friend, Charlie Kaiser, 23, of 1112 Voeamp street, a series of fights ensued, all of which Margie told in Morals Court. Charlie's elder brother, Frank, was fined $10 for a tussle with Margie's elder brother, Frank Glease, and a warrant was issued for Charlie because, Margie claimed, he had beaten her when she gave him the bad news.

ADMITS "HE KNEW"

that his "motions" was at an end.

That he and Dr. Orr knew when King went on leave of absence after the Federal grand jury hearing in October that he was "hunting another job."

While some members of the League's board were considering asking a court order to open safe deposit boxes where he had stored evidence, King was telegraphing or telephoning Dr. Orr or Dr. Zahniser "every day or two," the reform leader declared. Even Ralph H. Smith, attorney for the League, was not informed that they knew King's whereabouts.

"When Ralph Kemmerling told me on October 31 that certain parts of King's evidence were 'faked,'" Dr. Zahniser said, "I thought that Kemmerling had 'sold out,' and told him to his face that if I hadn't known him so long I would believe so," he added.

"I asked Kemmerling," he said, "why he hadn't informed me of these charges before. He said that I had been away and he couldn't reach me. I then reminded him that the last of the cases against the bootleggers was filed on May 5 and that I did not leave Pittsburgh until June 11.

"After Kemmerling left my office I tried to communicate with Dr. Orr, but could not find him. I was leaving the city that night and left word for Dr. Orr to see Kemmerling and get his story. Nothing further was done, because on that date a wire was received from King in which he said that he would return here the first of the week following."

When Blond Meets Blond Then Comes —What?

MONEY GONE, KILLS SELF

N. SIDE CRIPPLE FOUND DEAD IN FIELD

His patrimony gone, Tommy Harrison, cripple and familiar figure on the North Side, ended his life after tasting of charity for one week. The nattily attired but misshapen body was found, rain soaked, in a field beside the David B. Oliver High School, Brighton road, at 8 o'clock this morning. A bullet hole through the head and a 38-caliber revolver with one empty shell nearby indicated suicide.

Harrison, about 45, had been a cripple since infancy. He inherited $25,000, when he became of age, from his grandmother and that kept him until recently. He was a hunchback and wore a steel brace on his right leg which prevented him from working. In his younger days he was a good dresser and wore two large diamonds, but these recently disappeared.

Last Wednesday he went to the County Home at Woodville. He returned yesterday and visited the home of Roy E. Noel, 1219 Esplenade street, where he had left some of his clothing and a revolver. After supper he said he was going back to Woodville. Police believe he went direct to the lot and killed himself, as when found today his clothing was soaked with rain.

A sister, Mrs. Helen Harrison, 225 Custer avenue, Youngstown, O., is his only relative.

FLORENCE TRUMBULL

When blond meets blond, then comes—what? John Coolidge may be asking that question, and getting an answer soon. Florence Trumbull, to whom he has paid marked attention is a blond. So is Sarah Kunsig, Mt. Holyoke College girl, whom John took to a dance, and who found him "peachy." Students saw a break between John and Florence, but Florence only said, "Cut me out? Well, that remains to be seen. She was there, and I was here, so he went with her."

LOVE PACT VICTIM

MISS GRACE MILLS

Grace Mills, of Waltham, Mass., was shot and killed by her sweetheart, Joseph Buckley, after a death pact. Thwarted in their plans to marry, they plotted their lives. The shooting took place in a little car parked in a street in Waltham. Buckley is in a critical condition after shooting himself.

No Loan, Bandits Take It

"Lend me $100," a young, well-dressed man said to Nick Pope in the Pope restaurant at 8011 Frankstown avenue early today.

"I don't know you," Pope replied.

"Well, then, you'll giv to me," the stranger barked, pulling a revolver from a pocket and motioning two confederates to guard the front and rear doors.

The bandit took $150 from Pope's pocket and $35 from the cash register. He approached the lone patron, John Littleman, Singer street.

"I only have a dime to get to work," Littleman pleaded.

"Keep it," the leader conceded.

The three holdup artists escaped in a curtained touring car.

N. BESSEMER MAN SUICIDE

Despondent because he was out of work and could not support his family, John Drop, 45, of North Bessemer, shot himself in the heart today. His body with a revolver nearby was found along the tracks of the Bessemer and Lake Erie Railroad near Unity. He formerly was employed by the railroad.

M'GILLICK APPOINTED LAND COMPANY RECEIVER

F. E. McGillick was appointed receiver of the Dormont-Mifflin Land Company in Common Pleas Court today by Judge Thomas J. Ford. McGillick had been acting as temporary receiver. Bond was fixed at $35,000. The company has assets of $150,000, represented chiefly in land, with liabilities of about $100,000, it was stated to the court.

SHE WANTS DIVORCE

MRS. WILLIAM L. KING

Blast Is Only Another Noise to Two Mules

In a stall in the cellar of the Pittsburgh Clay Pot Building in Reedsdale street Anne and Mac munch away contentedly at well-filled bins of oats. Above them and on either side of them rescue workers have dug for victims of the Manchester gas blast, but Anne and Mac are blase and indifferent and pay no attention.

They are mules who lived through the explosion which killed and injured hundreds about them. And they still don't know of it! They were in their stalls awaiting the call to labor when the blast shook Manchester. And they are still in their stalls. Since last Monday, when tragedy entered, they haven't moved a dozen feet.

Observers believe the mules, veterans of mine work, were accustomed to blasts.

AWARDED $1,500 IN SUIT FOR $50,000 DAMAGES

James McBain, of Atlantic City, who sued the Pittsburgh Transportation Company for $50,000 for personal injuries, was awarded a verdict of $1,500 by a jury in Common Pleas Court today. McBain was injured November 8, 1925, in Butler street when a taxicab collided with another car.

Juryman Leaps to Death

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—While a jury was deliberating over the fate it was to mete out to Roland Gaskell, former deputy sheriff, accused of attacking a 20-year-old girl, one of the jurors, William A. Norberg, fell or jumped out of a fifth-floor window of the jury room tonight and died a little later in a hospital. His death caused a mistrial.

Gaskell was tried for an attack upon Miss Louise Smith, 20, of Cambridge, Mass., an employe of Harvard University.

Miss Smith was visiting with her sister here last fall when the alleged attack occurred, it was charged, in the course of roadhouse party.

"Life imprisonment is the only verdict you can conscientiously return in this case," Assistant State's Attorney Charles Dougherty said in his final argument.

"The eyes of womanhood are centered today on this court. Women in Cook county and women who are here to visit want to feel that they are protected from such degenerates as this defendant."

FAINTS ON STAND DENOUNCING HUSBAND

Mrs. Hilda S. Wilson, Craig street, McKeesport, fainted on the witness stand yesterday while detailing six harrowing reasons why she asked divorce from Edward M. Wilson. She said her husband turned the hose into the furnace, putting out the fire; threatened to cut her throat; nailed up the front door and locked the rear one, so she could not get in the house; limited purchases of foodstuffs to 10 cents a day; made Mrs. Wilson and her daughter, Ruth, take the leavings after he had eaten; asked for a return of her wedding ring on Thanksgiving Day, and finally told her he was through with her.

Libels in divorce were filed in court as follows: Mabel S. Davis against Robert W. Davis; Mardie H. Hughes against James C. Hughes; Edmonds Di Vitis against Babbina Di Vitis; Mary A. Kazen against Adam T. Kazen.

ARE YOU a "TOXIC"

Turned Down for Insurance

If there's anything insurance companies are careful about, it's your blood pressure. High blood pressure indicates a dangerous state of health that may cut life short. It is a condition due to our abnormal living habits, which put too great a strain upon the vital organs, especially the liver. The liver becoming weak and sluggish fails to cleanse the blood of the poisons formed in the food waste. The whole system then becomes toxic, with stomach, kidneys, heart and blood vessels affected. The liver, especially at middle life, needs a little help, and there's nothing better for this, as physicians today know, than a little ox gall. Ox gall is a great natural stimulant for the human liver, promoting its normal active functions, so essential to health and vitality. Diovol tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteless form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. They cost less than 2c each at good druggists, and one or two days' use will prove a revelation. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, be sure of getting Diovol.

FIRE CHIEF SEES AUTO PARKING BIG MENACE

Millions in downtown property are being jeopardized daily by the careless parking of motorists, Fire Chief Richard L. Smith told the Chamber of Commerce at its monthly meeting yesterday. Cars parked in front of or near fire plugs, cars parked closely to each other and cars parked in restricted streets were pointed out as weaknesses in daily situations.

"It is greatly to be regretted," said Mr. Smith, "that men whose thousands and millions are tied up in buildings do not give more attention to protecting these valuable possessions. Too often, after 6 o'clock in the evening, the sole custodians of factories and buildings are more-or-less decrepit old men not fitted mentally or physically to cope with problems that present themselves as soon as a spark of fire occurs. Watchman service should be made a real job!"

It is important, stated Mr. Smith, that businessmen see to it that their employes know exactly what to do when the first whiff of smoke or gleam of fire is discovered; and it is equally important that alleyways outside, passageways inside, and aisles in offices and warehouses be kept open for emergency use. Inasmuch as the majority of fires start in basements, those employed there should be especially on the alert both as to prevention and to sounding alarms in emergency, he said.

Just "making the motions"

a victim of cachexia (run-down condition)

How often you have gone about your work feeling all in, "just making the motions"—a victim of cachexia (run-down condition).

Whether this deadening feeling is due to chronic indigestion, constipation, or blood disorders (as evidenced by boils and pimples) it almost invariably responds at once to the use of pure yeast.

Eat yeast and eat it in a form you'll like—Yeast Foam Tablets. These little pellets are pure; they keep; they come in handy 5c packets or in the large 10-day treatment for 50 cents. Most folks chew them, though they're just as good if swallowed whole.

Eat Yeast Foam Tablets for cachexia (run-down condition). Loss of appetite. Indigestion. Constipation. Boils—Pimples.

ROBBED OF 6 YEARS, PRISONER TO 'FORGET'

COLLECTS $82 AS PAY FOR SIX YEARS

Although the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania robbed Joseph Sarappa of six years of his life by keeping him for that length of time illegally behind the bars of the Western Penitentiary, the prisoner, who was released yesterday, has decided to "forgive and forget."

These were Joe's words when he stepped joyfully through the great iron door and drew a deep, confident breath of the air of the outer world and freedom. With him was his wife, Emma, who for eight long years "took in washing" and struggled heroically to maintain her home and her two small children, Angelina, 14, and Merci, 8.

ROBBED OF SIX YEARS

Convicted of accessory after the fact in a murder case, with a country judge sitting on the Westmoreland county bench as a visiting jurist, Sarappa was sentenced to a term of 20 to 15 years in the penitentiary. After the man had served eight years, his friends learned that the maximum penalty was two to four years' imprisonment and secured his release by an order from the Allegheny county courts. Admittedly the Commonwealth had stolen six years from the prisoner, but the court declared that the law provided no recourse for him to claim remuneration.

"Let it go," said Joe. "The state can't pay me. The state has no money or anything else that can give me back my life between the age of 28 and 34 years, the best part of any man's life. Let it go. I forgive, and my conscience is clear. I will forget, and so will start over again at my old job in the coal mines."

Joe and Emma prepared to return to their home at Mt. Pleasant. Joe had been a model prisoner. Every day he worked in the penitentiary weaving shop and earned from 35 to 85 cents. From 20 to 30 cents out of each day's pay was sent to his wife and this with the wages from her laundry work enabled her to keep her meager home and send her daughters to the public school.

The balance of his wages Joe deposited at the penitentiary and when he prepared to take his leave, Warden Stanley P. Ashe handed him $82.84. The departing prisoner looked at the roll of money and smiled meekly:

WILL "FORGET"

"Six year's pay, eh, warden? Thank you, but I'll not put it all in one pocket. This will keep me until I get a job and then I'll work and work and—forget."

Waving his arms toward the prison in a plaintive gesture as he walked away, he added:

"Yes, I'll forget—I put all this life behind me."

"We have a good dinner and there will be a job waiting," his wife rejoined.

EMIL PAUR'S SON HERE

KURT PAUR

Pittsburgh music lovers will have an opportunity Saturday evening to hear Kurt Paur, son of Emil Paur, for eight years conductor of Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, who appears as guest artist-pianist with the Gaylord Yost String Quartet in the Hotel Schenley ballroom. Mr. Paur is a house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver S. Hershman, 200 Bellefield avenue, close friends of his father. Mrs. Hershman traveled to Berlin to hear him in his debut.

Son of Famous Paur To Be Heard Here

Pittsburgh music lovers will extend welcome to the son of an old friend Saturday evening when Kurt Paur appears as guest artist-pianist with the Gaylord Yost string quartet in the Hotel Schenley ballroom.

The son of Emil Paur, for eight years conductor of Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, came to Pittsburgh Thursday with the news that his illustrious father is now living in retirement in a small village between Prague and Vienna in Czechoslovakia.

DISLIKES JAZZ

From his studio in Buffalo where for three years he has lived in comparity obscurity while completing his studies, the young musician comes to Pittsburgh with old-fashioned ideas of his art.

About jazz, he says "Don't ask me." Later he declared that it is a serious impediment to appreciation of cultural music and "only the sensual rhythm of the body."

Though, while his father was conducting the Boston Symphony and the New York Philharmonic orchestras, young Paur lived for 12 years in the United States, his musical education was obtained in Europe. For five years he was a pupil of Von Dahanyi. He made his debut in Berlin 13 years ago. He came to America from a professorship of the piano in the Berlin Royal High School, because, he said, his lifetime's savings were wiped out in the deflation of the German mark and his salary per day "wouldn't buy a loaf of bread in Berlin."

BRAHMS, BEETHOVEN FAVORITES

Brahms and Beethoven are his favorites, though he is extremely fond of Schumann and Chopin. While he does not consider them "deep," Paur loves the poetic American school of MacDowell, and Pittsburgh's own Cadman and Nevin. The savage, sorrowful, fundamental note of Russian music, he says, must always be appealing.

Friends of Paur here, who have heard him play, declare he is an even greater artist than his father. Plans for him to appear in recital here next year already are under way.

While in Pittsburgh he is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver S. Hershman, 200 Bellefield avenue.

GLASS PRICE CUT ANNOUNCED

The American Window Glass Company yesterday announced an average reduction of 6 per cent in prices of window glass. This follows a cut of 15 per cent made last August.

In the past the company has guaranteed prices against declines for specific periods, but no guarantee is being made at the present, leaving the company free to meet additional foreign competition.

Doc Hoover Is at Flood Bedside, Says Will

WINSLOW, Ariz., Nov. 18.—I happened to be playing up through New England last spring when the Mississippi flood drive was on and they were very, very generous.

Never dreaming that they would ever need help, but they did, and there is the old Red Cross and old Doc Hoover at their bedside.

I get that the wheat farmers are sore at Hoover about he wouldn't let them soak up the people for bread during the war. Their excuse is that everybody else held us up, so why pick on them. They were the only ones he could catch.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

FALLS 50 FEET FROM OHIO BRIDGE, UNHURT

MARTINS FERRY, O., Nov. 18.—Fifty feet Wayne Kinsel, 13, fell and escaped with a few abrasions. He spent his money for hot dogs at a football game and, not having the three cents toll fare over the Ohio River bridge, tried to walk the girders. He failed and missed the water by 10 feet, falling into the sticky mire and muck of the riverbank.

MEXICAN RIGHTS OF OIL COMPANY ARE UPHELD

COURT UPHOLDS FOREIGN DRILLER

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The dawn of a new era in Mexican-American relations was seen today in many quarters here, both Mexican and American, in the Mexican Supreme Court decision favoring a foreign oil company in the first test case under the new petroleum law.

It was believed that the decision in favor of the Mexican Petroleum Company, an American concern, establishes a principle, which, if continued in other cases, will ultimately remove one of the principal points of difference which has existed in recent years between the Mexican and United States governments, namely, the alleged retroactive and confiscatory features of the new petroleum law.

The Supreme Court decision follows closely the recent official expressions of President Calles and American Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow of their hope and desire for an amicable adjustment, mutually satisfactory to both governments, of the points at issue between them.

The decision, while considered significant as indicative of the policy of the government, does not in fact establish a legal precedent and does not rule upon the general question of the constitutionality of the law as a whole.

The present decision grants to the Mexican Petroleum Company, one of a number of foreign companies having similar cases pending, an injunction restraining the government from canceling, under the new law, drilling permits that had previously been issued to that company. The decree also declared unconstitutional, but only so far as this case and company are concerned, the section of the law which substitutes 50-year confirmatory concessions for oil land titles acquired before the adoption of the 1917 constitution, and also the section which forfeits titles to oil lands if application for the confirmatory concession is not made within a year after the law became effective.

Similar rulings in other cases would apparently remove the principal objections foreign interests have expressed to the law.

RED CROSS ASKS CO-OPERATION IN CRISIS

Sophie Levin, director of the eleventh roll call of the Pittsburgh Chapter of American Red Cross, today sent out a county-wide request to every person who has taken membership to place a Red Cross flag in the window.

"The North Side disaster is placing double work on the Red Cross canvassers," she stated. "They are revisiting their territories, so any person who was missed Red Cross Sunday will have an opportunity to join. Help them by displaying your flag until after Thanksgiving Day, if you have joined, so they need not visit your home again.

Additional names of missing persons as announced over the radio last night, are as follows: Elva Vorger, 1137 Ridge avenue; Edmond Petosky, 1209 Ridge avenue; Rosanna Besnick, 1216 Ridge avenue; James Robinson or Robertson, 1120 Reedsdale street; Rachel Neuhart, her two sons, Samuel and William, and her granddaughter, Sarah Wintersgill, no address; James Ray, 842 Goebel street; William and Elizabeth Baker, 1904 Metropolitan street.

Teachers in the Manchester school yesterday gave $76 to the disaster relief fund.

SWOLLEN RIVERS CLAIM TWO VICTIMS

By International News Service

WARREN, Pa., Nov. 18.—A score or more of citizens today were dragging the swollen waters of the Allegheny River here in a search for the body of Floyd Cross, 24, of Tidioute, the first flood victim of the season. Cross was drowned while crossing the river on a ferry at Dunns Eddy between Irvine and Tidioute last evening. Cross, who was employed by the Root Construction Company as steam shovel fireman, jumped into the river as the ferry was swept down stream when a rope parted under the strain of holding the ferry on its course.

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa., Nov. 18.—Efforts of a pal to save him fruitless, Albert Lowe, 12, was drowned in Block House Run after he had slipped off a plank into the swollen waters. Clyde Eiler, 12, also thrown into the stream, almost lost his own life trying to save his friend.

YOUTHFUL HUNTER SHOT IN GREENSBURG WOODS

TWP. ELECTION CHANGED BY RECOUNT

The outcome of the election of school directors of Hampton township apparently will be changed by a check-up of the ballots cast in the November election made yesterday by the special recount committee headed by Ward Bonsall.

The ballot box was brought into court by five petitioners interested in the township election. The original report shows that Robert F. Sample, candidate for school director, received 665 votes, and his opponent, H. Russell Anderson, received 641 votes. The recount revealed that Anderson received 651 votes and Sample received only 641. This is the first instance of the committee count changing the result of the election as shown by the returns.

Work of the returning board making the official count of the ballots cast in the November election has progressed as far as the Eighth District of the Twenty-second Ward.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, a large bottle, for only 75 cents at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

HILL SYNAGOGUE ROBBED

The Congregational Zebeck Synagogue in Crawford street was ransacked and damaged $1,700 by vandals, it was learned yesterday when attendants went to the church. A rear door had been chopped out behind the altar, prayer books, sacramental cups and pews destroyed and robes, caps and shawls valued at $700 stolen, police were told.

For the last six months there has been numerous reports of church wrecking in the Hill district.

SQUIRREL HILL BOARD GIVES $100 BLAST AID

Acting on a suggestion made by President Frank L. Dugan from his sick bed in Mercy Hospital, the directors of the Squirrel Hill Board of Trade donated $100 to the Red Cross fund for relief of the Manchester explosion victims.

PROSPERITY TEST OF AMERICA, SAYS COOLIDGE

Predicts New Era of Development in U. S.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—A new era in which America's prosperity will be turned to a development of its resources and defenses and toward promotion of peace between all nations was portrayed by President Coolidge last night in an address before the Union League of Philadelphia.

Choosing this organization, founded in the trying days of the Civil War, for a review of his Administration's achievements and its plans for the future, the President cautioned that a new test has arisen for the American people—the test of prosperity—and expressed the conviction that the great mass of people realize that "the doctrine of ease is the doctrine of surrender and decay."

ZENITH OF PROSPERITY

The country, he said, has reached the zenith of its prosperity, the end of its task of post-war reconstruction is in sight and the time when internal improvements may be considered is at hand.

"Flood control must be completed," the President declared. "A waterway system for the Mississippi Valley and its tributaries, with one arm reaching to the Gulf, and another to the Atlantic, probably through the St. Lawrence, is only a question of time. The Colorado River project is pressing, the Columbia Basin not far distant.

"On the sea we shall round out our Navy with more submarines and more cruisers, and private ownership should provide it with an auxiliary merchant marine with fast cargo boats."

The ability to do these things, Mr. Coolidge declared, is the result of "past insistence on economy in national expenditures," which simultaneously has made possible three reductions of taxes with the promise of a further moderate lifting of the burden in the next Congress. The principal weakness existing, in his opinion, is the remaining $18,000,000,000 of the national debt which he described as a menace to the national credit.

URGES DEBT RETIREMENT

"It is the greatest weakness in our line of national defense," he said. "It is the largest obstacle in the path of our economic development. It should be retired as fast as possible under a system of reasonable taxation. This can be done only by continuing the policy of 'rigid government economy.'"

Throughout his discussion of America's position to other nations, the President referred to the promotion of peace as a great treasure.

Declaring that the present position of the United States has been attained not by accident, but by following a carefully thought out policy, Mr. Coolidge held that two of the basic reasons for the nation's development have been opposition to the principle of government ownership and maintenance of a protective tariff. He contended that "any material reduction of our general tariff rates would ultimately result in a drastic deflation of agricultural and industrial values, in the rate of wages, and in the standards of living."

CITES FOREIGN COMMERCE

"Under the present system," the President said, "our foreign commerce has reached the highest peacetime record and our national income has steadily increased to the enormous proportions of $90,000,000,000 for the last calendar year. This represents a volume of production and trade far in excess of that which any other country ever reached. It is the zenith of our prosperity. All of this should be considered in any appraisal of the worth of our long-established policy."

"If economic freedom vanishes," he said, "political freedom becomes nothing but a shadow. It has therefore been our wish that the people of the country should own and conduct all gainful occupations, not directly connected with government service. When the government once enters a business it must occupy the field alone. No one can compete with it. The result is a paralyzing monopoly."

The President declared that the economic results which have accrued to the American people by placing reliance in the initiative and freedom of the individual "is the very antithesis of communism, but it has raised the general welfare of the people to a position beyond even the promises of the extremists. We have demonstrated that we were able to meet adversity and overcome it. The test which now confronts the nation is prosperity. There is nothing more likely to reveal the soul of a people. History is littered with stories of nations destroyed by their own wealth."

FIGHTS TO BUILD IN AVALON

Refused a permit to erect an apartment house at California and Home avenues, Avalon, on the site of the old James Sample property, Andrew Spencer has appealed from the decision of the Avalon building inspector and board of adjustment, to the Common Pleas Court.

It is claimed that the Methodist Episcopal Church is objecting to the erection of the apartment. Spencer lives in Bellevue. The property formerly was that of James Sample, who was an old resident of Avalon and a former burgess of that borough. Spencer wants the court to set aside the ruling of the building inspector, who has been upheld by the borough's board of adjustment.

The Plays and Players — THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH — The Stage and Screen

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1927

Gertrude Olmstead Returns to Paramount, After Three Years, to Play Opposite Richard Dix

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 18.

IT'S BEEN three years since Gertrude Olmstead has been on the Paramount lot. That's why everybody knew there must be a contract in the offing when she appeared at the studio yesterday. Everyone for a change was right. Gertrude came to put her signature to a contract which gives her the title of Richard Dix's leading woman.

She furnished the feminine appeal in "The Traveling Salesman"—that old play that was such a riot on the stage when father was courting mother. "The Traveling Salesman," by the by, is resurrected from the archives.

It was made with Wallace Reid some years ago and taken out of its wrappings when there wasn't an available play for Richard Dix. Mal St. Clair, who is directing Richard, can be seen almost any pleasant afternoon in a corner at the Paramount studios talking to Richard on the comedy of the old-time play.

I believe "The Traveling Salesman" is the same play that Frank McIntyre scored such a hit in many years ago. Now just a word about Gertrude, who is Mrs. Robert Leonard in private life, wife of the director. It's high time she had the right opportunity in pictures.

Lillian Gish's plans—her future, I mean, is one of the subjects that is occupying the attention of many Hollywood people during the long fall evenings. What will Lillian do next and when? A man who should know about such things, has Miss Gish's future all mapped out. It may or may not be true. I am the gullible sort that usually listens. Joseph Schenck at the moment is in New York. So is Lillian. There seems very little doubt that Mr. Schenck will sign her for one picture a year, giving her the chance to return to D. W. Griffith. In her quiet way, Miss Gish has always let it be known she only considered there was one director in the world and his first name starts with "D" and the last with "G." So, that's that.

The chances are that Norma Shearer will not have any wait between pictures. The moment she finishes "The Traveling Saleslady," she will begin work on "Trelawney of the Wells." Arthur Sidney Franklin, the director, has completely recovered. In fact, he is already on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot making preparations for "Trelawney." There is a reason for haste. Norma wants to have a picture ahead of schedule so she can be ready to go abroad with Irving Thalberg when they leave the first of the year on their honeymoon. Sidney Franklin, who has had a long siege, is looking like himself again.

Either Al Rabock's bride-to-be, Curtyne Engler, holds some sentimental attachment for May 29, or else she is a lady who believes in definite dates. Instead of admitting she will marry the Hollywood director next May, she comes right out and says pronto that she will marry him May 29. My secretary, who knows her Hollywood laws, says maybe Mr. Raboch's divorce becames final on that day. You see, she is skeptical. Anyway, Miss Engler, who is a graduate of Egan's School of Dancing, and a dancing teacher herself, will say "yes" May 29. Mr. Raboch, by-the-by, is directing the Tiffany film, formerly allotted to Louis Gasnier.

Chester Conklin, he of the heavy rimmed glasses and comedy falls, is about to do his stuff in a heavy drama—a newspaper story at that. Mr. Conklin plays no less than the title role in "The Headliner," Ben Hecht's newspaper story, which is about to be filmed by Robert Kane. It will be difficult to conjure up the walrus-mustached Conklin in anyway but as a comique. Yet, these comedians occasionally surprise us by being as dramatic as Theda Bara.

We get so in the habit of scorning all of the old films that occasionally it is surprising to see that they were not all utter junk. Norma Talmadge showed "The Battle Cry of Peace" the other evening, an old-time Vitagraph picture, made just after Germany entered the war with England and France. The plea was one for preparedness and, as far as story and construction go, that picture would stand favorable comparison with many of our modern pictures. True, there were times when Norma didn't exercise her prerogative as a star and we found half of her out of the camera lines; and the light and photography were pretty bad. But as for story and technique, this proves that J. Stuart Blackton was on the right track even back in the "flicker" period.

The style of wearing one's own natural hair is in vogue in Hollywood. Victoria Mix came back from Europe with her blonde hair a deep dark brown. She announced that this becoming chestnut was really the original color of her hair before she became a blonde long ago for picture purposes. I noticed Margaret Livingston's hair greatly subdued in shade. I thought I had never seen her look so well and inquired what had happened. "Her own hair," whispered a chatty friend. "Hasn't it improved her appearance?" Most of the girls seem to prefer their natural color with the exception of Constance Talmadge, who took one look at herself with dark hair and promptly called for first aid to restore her lost beauty.

The new type of screen mother is embodied in Hedda Hopper, who has more mother jobs than almost any actress in Hollywood. Hedda isn't the dear old mother who sits by the fireside and waits for her children. I should hope not. She is smart, up-to-date and the rival of the flappers. But isn't that the way most modern mothers are supposed to look these days? She has just finished work in "The Whip Woman" as Antonio Moreno's mother, and now she is at Famous Players-Lasky mothering Esther Ralston.

Barry Attempts Come-Back on Screen

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 18.—Staging a come-back at the age of 20. That's Wesley Barry's job. There never was a more popular screen youngster than Barry of the light freckle brigade until he began growing up. In the awkward years between 16 and 19 his popularity waned a bit and he retired quietly.

Now he's cast as the jockey "In Old Kentucky." He looks very adult and has acquired a wife and talks seriously about his future and art.

Tonight's Concert Artist

Helen Howison, who will appear on a program with Maurice Maechal in Carnegie Music Hall this evening, will sing two groups of songs, including "The Orchard Song," by William Wentzell. The program ranges from music of the sixth century to the present. Mr. Maechal's selections also are varied as to mood.

"Drums of Love," Griffith Film, Is Finished

David Wark Griffith yesterday completed camera work on "Drums of Love." This is his first United Artists picture since the summer of 1925. Mr. Griffith finished his film one week before schedule time, and 15 per cent below the budget cost, actual shooting time taking seven weeks, night and day. On the last day of work, Mr. Griffith, according to his telegram to United Artists' New York office, filmed 88 script scenes—a single day's record for D. W. Griffith.

The cast of "Drums of Love" includes Mary Philbin, Lionel Barrymore, Don Alvarado, Tully Marshall, Rosemary Cooper, Rose Rosanova, Joyce Coad, Charles Hill Mailes, William Austin and Eugenie Besserer.

Gerritt Lloyd, for many years Mr. Griffith's personal press representative, wrote the original story of "Drums of Love." It is a drama laid in the tropics, and it tells the story of mutual love of two brothers, Don Leonardo (Don Alvarado) and Don Cathos (Lionel Barrymore). Mr. Barrymore made his film debut in a D. W. Griffith production in 1909, playing with Mary Pickford, then "the Biograph girl," in "Friends."

William Bitzer, the "Billy" of Biograph days, rejoined Mr. Griffith and filmed "Drums of Love." In 1907, Billy Bitzer, the first professional cameraman, hired young Griffith to direct a picture, for in those days the cameraman was boss of the "lot."

BEGIN PLANS FOR AIR RACES AT LOS ANGELES

Plans are already under way for making the 1928 national air races, to be held at Los Angeles, the greatest event in the history of aviation.

Yost Quartet to Open Music Series

The Yost String Quartet will open its 1927-28 series of chamber music tomorrow evening in the Hotel Schenley's ballroom. There will be four concerts in the series and guest artists will appear on each program.

For the first concert, Kurt Paur, pianist, son of Emil Paur, the last conductor of the old Pittsburgh Orchestra, has been engaged. Mr. Paur, a pupil of Dohnanyi, has appeared successfully in concerts in Europe. The members of the quartet are: Gaylord Yost, first violin; Roy Shumaker, second violin; Carl Rosenberg, viola, and James Younger, 'cello. The complete program follows:

Dragged to Screen by Hair of Her Head

Lois Wilson, who is playing an important featured role in "French Dressing," presented by Robert Kane through First National Pictures and directed by Allan Dwan, was literally dragged into the movies by the hair of her head.

Miss Wilson won a beauty contest as a high school girl in Birmingham, Ala., the prize being a trip to California. On her way home she stopped in Chicago to visit an aunt, and visited a studio there, where Lois Weber was directing a costume melodrama. They gained admittance, and when Miss Weber saw Lois' lovely waist-long hair, she offered her a bit in the picture. The bit consisted of being dragged through a court yard by the hair of her head by the villain. She did her work so well that Miss Weber offered her a contract, and Miss Wilson turned right around and went back to California.

"French Dressing" also features H. B. Warner, Clive Brook and Lilyan Tashman.

Whitey Kaufman and his recording orchestra return to Pittsburgh Saturday for a one-night engagement at Sanders, on the Freeport highway, Aspinwall. Both the glass dance floor and the terrace garden floor will be used Saturday night.

ZIEGFELD LIKES "SHOW BOAT"

The following telegram has been received by Harry Brown, manager of the Nixon, from Florenz Ziegfeld: "'Show Boat' is unquestionably the most satisfactory entertainment that I have ever produced. The Washington Post says: 'It is the last word in musical productions. It is a masterpiece of musical plays. It is the high mark of showmanship, if there is enough money at the box office to keep it up as the payroll must be as large as the Navy Yard's on Saturday night.' Regret 'Show Boat' is booked for only one week in Pittsburgh before going to New York. It has best cast and most beautiful girls ever seen in Pittsburgh."

Ann Pennington, Willie and Eugene Howard, Tom Patricola, Harry Richman, Frances Howard, Buster West, John West, Williams sisters, Rose Perfect and James Miller are the headliners of George White's "Scandals," next week's attraction in the Alvin. The production is said to surpass anything in kind ever sent on tour out of New York. There will be three matinees of the "Scandals." Besides the Wednesday and Saturday matinees there will be a special matinee Thursday (Thanksgiving).

The business being done by "The Spider," the mystery play, in the Pitt this week, warrants another week's stay of this attraction. Consequently "The Spider" will play another week in this house beginning next Monday night, with matinees Thursday and Saturday. William Courtenay, a local, heads the company.

Hardeen, illusionist, will appear at the Davis next week on the Keith-Albee vaudeville program presenting a mass of mysteries, including creations willed him by his brother, Houdini. Sammy Cohen, in "The Gay Retreat," will be the screen feature.

RIVER RISING, BUT WILL NOT REACH FLOOD STAGE

Water to Be Foot Shy Of Danger Mark

Althought the Allegheny River is rising steadily, due to three inches of rainfall over its watersheds during the last few days, there is no danger of the river overflowing its banks, Weather Forecaster W. S. Brotzman said today.

According to the weather bureau, the crest of the high water here would be reached early tomorrow morning and would be more than a foot below stage stage, 25 feet. The stage at 12 o'clock, noon, today at the confluence of the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers was 19 feet.

Many towns on the banks of the Allegheny in northern Pennsylvania were damaged by high water, but with the stage falling at the headwaters no serious damage will result.

NEW CASTLE CEMENT CO. EMPLOYE ELECTROCUTED

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Nov. 18.—Peter Mally, 33, was electrocuted yesterday when he tried to turn on a short-circuited switch in the Bessemer Cement and Limestone plant. He leaves a wife and two children in Europe.

FIVE LEGION MEN HURT IN SPILL

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Five members of the American Legion Post Drum Corps of Uniontown were injured, one seriously, when their automobile crashed into an embankment and overturned last night at a sharp curve while they were driving home from Meyersdale where they had participated in a legion parade.

William Whitby, the most seriously injured, is in the Meyersdale Hospital. The others, less seriously hurt, are Raymond Rutter, Duane Rush, John McMullen and George Hudec, the latter driver of the car.

MAN, IF ALIVE, MUST PROVE IT

If Simon Susser is alive he is commanded to make it known to the Orphans' Court of Allegheny county within 90 days, otherwise he will be declared legally dead and his estate distributed.

Judge H. Walton Mitchell directed that advertisements be inserted in the newspapers setting forth that legal presumption of the death was established as of December 31, 1915.

Susser, who has not been seen since that time, formerly was a resident of Arthur street, Pittsburgh, and has one brother, Harry Susser. The value of the missing man's estate is given as $1,961.

INVESTIGATE DYNAMITING OF GLASSWORKER'S HOME

Special Prizes Offered Birdhouse Workers

A special reward offer to boys and girls of The Sun-Telegraph Bird House Club who are selling New Reader subscriptions, is announced today by J. M. Aylward, manager of the club.

Twenty-eight prizes, to be awarded the young sales people, will go to those who will have sent in the most New Reader subscriptions by December 17. The awards will be made in time for Christmas shopping, and will be extra bonuses to those who excel.

Fourteen prizes will go to girls and a like number to boys. Of course, for each new subscription sent in, the regular 50 cents will be paid. The prizes are extra, and should line the pockets of the boy and girl members of the club—and furnish considerable spending money for the holidays.

The special offer closes December 17, but the days in between will be long enough, and there will be enough days to give the boys and girls a chance to get around and introduce their sales product to new customers. Plenty of blanks will be furnished the salespeople by the club manager upon request. Those who run out of them can call or write for more.

See the advertisement on the comic page for the prize list.

C. OF C. TRADE TOUR ENDS

River Problem Studied At Cincinnati

By MAX HENRICI,
Staff Correspondent.

CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 18.—Somewhat fatigued after 3,000 miles of travel and eight consecutive nights in sleeping cars, the Chamber of Commerce tourists studying waterway improvements in the Mississippi, the Gulf of Mexico and tributary rivers arrived in Cincinnati for their last stop. Two days ago they were perspiring in New Orleans sunshine; here they encountered snow.

They were met at the station by a committee from the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce and taken on an automobile ride to points of interest. Many of the Pittsburghers, however, spent the few hours at their disposal in conference with business associates here.

Cincinnati's waterway problem is much the same as that of Pittsburgh. The Queen City's utilization of the Ohio has been incomplete because of the fact that the lower part of the stream is not navigable in seasons of low water. But canalization will be finished in 1929 and a nine-foot stage between Pittsburgh and Cairo made available throughout the year. Cincinnati is as much interested in the development as Pittsburgh, and it provided an interesting subject of conversation.

There was a dinner for the visitors at the Chamber of Commerce last night. The speakers representing Pittsburgh were T. P. Gaylord, vice president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company; James Francis Burke, A. H. Burchfield, vice president of the Joseph Horne Company, and Councilman Robert Garland. Cincinnati's speakers were: Robert A. Taft, a son of Chief Justice Taft of the United States Supreme Court; Judge Stanley Matthews and Julia A. Pollak, president of the Rail-Water Terminal.

In his speech tonight Mr. Garland reviewed the tour, which he said had shown Pittsburgh to be backward in certain respects. He said:

"Notwithstanding our potentiality as the fifth district of the country in point of actual business transacted, we find that we have not taken time by the forelock, and other cities situated on our great waterway from the port of Pittsburgh to the sea have forged ahead and accomplished things.

"What must Cincinnati and Pittsburgh do? I cannot speak for Cincinnati, but as to Pittsburgh let me submit this: The Mayor and Council will request the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce to submit a report of our pilgrimage, this to be prepared by a competent committee chosen from our ranks by our president. To consider this report and to bring about prompt action there should be a meeting of the Mayor, the Council and the county commissioners, and every one of our pilgrims should be present.

"This is Allegheny county's problem as much as it is that of the city of Pittsburgh. Manufacturers of the entire district will be directly benefited by cheaper transportation. The city will have on the first of January next an unexpended borrowing power of about $16,000,000. The county has a larger sum at its disposal. We might go, say 50-50, on the proposition. What is there more urgent if we are to keep our mills and factories operating than to reduce the cost of transportation and distribution of our commodities?"

FORMALLY OPEN WILKINSBURG'S NEW BANK

The new Wilkinsburg Bank, Wood street and Ross avenue, Wilkinsburg, a model of modern banking efficiency, will formally open this evening at 7 o'clock when the doors will be thrown open for a public inspection. Officers and employes will conduct the visitors through the building.

The improvements to the bank, made at a cost of nearly $200,000, have completely transformed the interior of the building and have increased the facilities for business four-fold. The spacious interior is impressive. The white ceiling combined with the soft shading of the Travertine and St. Genevieve marble walls; the counters illuminated by indirect lighting from bulbs placed in troughs at the top of the screens surrounding the 20 teller cages—these produce a most cheerful effect. The counter desks are compact and efficient and will ably serve the patron.

The bank was originally opened in 1896 by Jesse A. Strickler, who was identified with the Frick interests for many years. Mr. Strickler was president of the bank until 1902, when R. L. Finley, then cashier, was elected president. Mr. Finley has since retained the position and in the past week has received many letters of congratulation on the bank's progress from bankers throughout the country.

The institution still occupies its original site. When first opened it occupied one room 16 feet by 60 feet, contained two teller cages, 50 safe deposit boxes and employed only a cashier and bookkeeper. In 1907 the old building was torn down and part of the edifice housing the institution today was erected at a cost of $150,000. This building was 42 feet by 80 feet deep and contained five teller cages and 200 safe deposit boxes.

The new edifice is 42 feet by 133 feet deep, built of ornate marble, contains besides, the 20 teller cages, private offices for the officers and for its staff of 25 employes, a modern Mosler vault containing 3,500 safe deposit boxes with room for a like number more, a reception room for the women patrons, a directors' room on a mezzanine floor, a large accounting room on the second floor, nine coupon booths for patrons and a rest room for the female employes.

The remarkable growth of the bank is shown by the deposits in 1907 amounting to $500,000 while today the deposits are in excess of $5,500,000 with a capital of $50,000, surplus of $400,000 and undivided profits of $400,000.

One of the features of the new building is the directors' room which is finished in walnut wood that was obtained from a tree cut in Washington county.

A night depository has been installed for the benefit of merchant depositors who close their business after banking hours.

Among the letters of congratulation received by President Finley is one from Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, stating that the Wilkinsburg bank has certainly arrived at an important position in banking circles, and Secretary Mellon and Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Mellon attended the reception for bankers on Thursday night.

New Bank Head

R. L. FINLEY

President of new Wilkinsburg bank, who will greet friends of the institution at the formal opening tonight.

BANK BUILDING CONTRACTORS

The following is a list of the contractors who collaborated with F. Hoffman Company, general contractors, in the erection of the new Wilkinsburg Bank, Wood street and Ross avenue, Wilkinsburg:

Stinson-Kennedy Company, plumbing; J. Lowry Hovis, plaster; Pittsburgh Cut Stone Company; Steel Brothers, brick; Ira C. Wilson, concrete and cement; Wilson Cabinet Company, Morganstern Electric Company, Iron City Heating Company, Morris Graff Company, mantels and tile; J. L. Mullen, iron contractors; Warren Ehret Company, roofers, and E. & H. Werner Company, interior decorating.

U. S. ECONOMY CUTS ICE FROM STAFF HERE

Governmental economy is causing much discomfort to United States employes in the Federal Building because ice is lacking for the water coolers. Despite November's warm weather, the ice supply was cut off by Washington as an unnecessary luxury after November 1.

Since then, the employes have to be content with luke-warm water for drinking, since the "cold" water pipe runs along side of the hot water pipes. Not only the employes alone, but many jurors are complaining. One juror declared he was spending 30 to 40 cents a day by going to nearby stores for something cold to quench his thirst.

You Are Welcome!

In Wilkinsburg's Newest Bank

WHEN it opens tonight at 7 o'clock, you will meet in a new garment of marble and steel and stone, an old friend—the Wilkinsburg Bank.

Its officials, its staff of 25, will will be on hand to show you the most modern, the most efficient, the most useful in financial service and equipment.

Since 1896, it has stood on the same spot, eager and active in serving the constantly growing community of Wilkinsburg and its neighbors.

From one small room, it has grown until now its main room is bordered by 20 cages—two teller cages then; ten times that many now.

In 1907, deposits amounted to less than half a million dollars. Today—re-dedicated under a new roof, it calls attention to the confidence of its neighboring people, who have deposits exceeding $5,000,000 secured there.

In 1898 it had one small safe. Tonight visitors will see a marvel of steel and mechanics—a monumental Mosler vault containing 3500 safe deposit boxes and room for 7500.

This is an open invitation for you to visit, to inspect, the new building from cellar to roof; to see and enjoy the reception rooms, the director and staff offices, the accounting room, the coupon booths—all the complements of the new and efficient

POISON LIQUOR TAKES TOLL OF 14 IN BALTIMORE

TELL OF PARTY IN LATEST DEATHS

BALTIMORE, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—In this city of 11 deaths from alcohol in three weeks, police today learned that "powerful poison," and grief in affliction, attended the strange passing of three others—a druggist, his wife and their best friend.

Records state that the 11 died from over-indulgence, from green moonshine, from a dash of poison, or from any one of the many ways in which alcohol is said to strike down its victims. But so little was known in the death of Albert Curran—the druggist—his wife, Helen, who was the mother of several children, and their friend, Merril Stevens, a tugboat captain of Newark, N. J., that permits for burial were withheld.

Neighbors, some reluctant and others anxious to tell police what they knew of the deaths that have terrified every person who got prescription liquor at Curran's store, said that the druggist, disconsolate over the loss of his wife, had threatened to send himself to the grave. Others told of a "big party" preceding Mrs. Curran's death.

The post mortem examination revealed poison, of a kind that chemists alone could classify, in the bodies of both the man and his mate. All three died in convulsions.

TELLS OF FATAL DRINK

Stevens, the last of the trio to pass, died Wednesday night while telling how Curran, on Tuesday, fell to the floor of his store, fatally attacked, after draining a wine glass of colored liquid into which he had seen the druggist drop a powder.

Police heard of "a big party" at the Currans on Sunday night and Monday, ending when Mrs. Curran was seized. She died that night.

A few hours before her death Curran went into a nearby store, kept by Bell Mumaw, and sobbed out a threat to take his own life, if his wife were not spared.

"I'm not long for this world; I'll kill myself," the woman quoted him as crying.

By the request of Curran's physician, Stevens went to Curran's home that night to cheer the grief-stricken druggist. The Currans and the Stevens had been friends for years.

Parents of Mrs. Stevens, with whom the pair was staying, said that their son-in-law spent Monday night with Curran and returned to their home on Tuesday night much mystified about the death of Curran. After eating a hearty breakfast, he left their house the next morning, never to return.

CONVINCED FRIEND POISONED

Applying for treatment under a fictitious name, he had his stomach pumped out a few hours later. Thursday he was brought back to the hospital in convulsions from which he died 10 minutes after admission. Police were convinced he knew he had been poisoned and his mother said he had gone to the druggist for medicine for a cold.

In stating that he had found a "powerful poison" in the bodies of the Currans, Dr. J. Howard Maldeis reported that its nature could be discovered only through an analysis of the stomachs, which would require two days.

Coroner Thomas B. Horton announced that the death of Harry Galloway, eleventh of the alcohol victims, might have been caused by liquor purchased of Curran and that an investigation had been ordered to learn if he was the fourth victim in the strange cycle.

BACK TO FREEDOM

JOE SARAPPA AND WIFE

Sarappa, robbed of six of the best years of his life by being held illegally a prisoner in the Western Penitentiary through the mistake of a country judge, embraced his wife when she called for him at the big Riverside prison. The prisoner, liberated by court order, declares that he seeks no compensation from the commonwealth and will "forgive and forget."

POLICEMEN'S HEARING IS POSTPONED

A hearing in the case of the alleged police "wrecking crew," accused of causing $10,000 damage to the Hotel Grise, 49 Eleventh street, in a raid last Saturday, was postponed by Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court today until after the police trial board acts next Wednesday.

Attorney Louis Little, on behalf of the six defendants, objected to postponement on the ground that they could not give "100 per cent efficiency" while their cases were undisposed of, but Brandon turned a deaf ear to this plea.

The six, Lieuts. Philip Marmo and Joseph Schnurr, and Patrolmen Daniel Lynch, Joseph Owens, William Kessler and Joseph Raisnas, were arrested on warrants issued by Magistrate Brandon charging malicious mischief, after they had chorused "The hell we are," when told by Brandon they were under arrest at a previous hearing.

CARNEGIE'S BIRTHDAY HONORED AT INSTITUTE

SECOND NEWS SECTION THE SUN TELEGRAPH SPORTS FEATURES

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1927

TORNADO SWEEPS WASHINGTON

DEBRIS FROM DAMAGED BUILDINGS LYING IN HEAPS IN STREET

ONE OF THE BUILDINGS PARTLY UNROOFED BY STORM

CARNEGIE'S BIRTHDAY HONORED

In commemoration of the birthday of Andrew Carnegie, the Carnegie Institute of Technology, which he founded, held exercises today at Carnegie Music Hall. It was the fifteenth annual observance.

United States Senator Simeon D. Fess, of Ohio, was the principal speaker. He paid tribute to Carnegie, saying his "magnificent provision for an institution to promote the deepest thought and highest skill of our youth in this industrial age is thought by many to be his crowning service to mankind."

The exercises were preceded by a procession from the campus to the Music Hall. The parade was made up of the Kiltie Band, the Reserve Officers' Training Corps with colors, the members of the executive board, the faculty and the students.

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of the institute, presided. Charles A. H. Pearson, of the class of 1922, played the organ. Musical numbers were also rendered by the orchestra of the department of music under the direction of Prof. J. Vick O'Brien. The Rev. Dr. Clarence E. Macartney, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, pronounced the invocation.

In compliment to Senator Fess, the 249 Ohio students registered in the day student body sat in a group and arose at a signal from Dr. Baker.

It was announced that scholarships for the first semester had been awarded to about 250 students, representing all branches of the institution.

ENDOWMENT GIFT

Another announcement was that a gift of $4,500 had been made to the endowment fund by the day student council. It represents an accumulation of unexpended balances which the council has had at times during the last 12 years. This money is to share in the "two for one" arrangement with the Carnegie Corporation of New York and is given with the stipulation that it shall apply towards the erection of a student activities building.

Yu Yen Lai, a Chinese student in the department of printing, was among five who were "called" by Alpha Tau, an honorary fraternity, for high scholarship in the college of industries. The others were: James L. Austraw, Pittsburgh; John W. Dean, Jr., Martinsburg, W. Va.; Gordon Y. Durr, Garett Park, Ind., and Paul E. Kumpf, of Buffalo. John W. McNair, president of Alpha Tau, announced the elections.

Cecil W. Ray, representing Tau Beta Pi, an honorary fraternity recognizing high scholarship in the college of engineering, announced the election of Milton Cohen, of Morgantown, W. Va.; Donald H. Callen, Sligo, Pa., and Febton H. Finn, of Ridgway, Pa.

LAUDS CARNEGIE

In his eulogy of Carnegie Senator Fess said in part:

"His munificent provision for special research in various fields made possible by the Carnegie Foundation is an outstanding achievement which alone is sufficient to make our time his debtor. His services on behalf of world peace, taking various substantial forms, make him a benefactor of the most cherished monument of modern times. Such an institution as the Carnegie Institute of Technogoy is rightly regarded as the seminar of ideas, the laboratory of applied knowledge and the training ground for the highest skill in actual achievement. In the years to come it will serve the youth of generations and will help to prepare them for the new civilization which is before them."

Much of Senator Fess' address was a review of the progress of science and its application to industry.

Prays For Her Son

BELIEVES HIM VICTIM OF CIRCUMSTANCES

While her son, George Remus, former king of bootleggers, is waging his fight for acquittal under the "unwritten law," Mrs. Maria Remus, his 73-year-old mother, is praying daily that her son be returned to her. Mrs. Remus believes her son could do no wrong and is a victim of circumstances. In the upper photograph she is shown sitting by the window of the $100,000 Remus home in exclusive Price Hill, a suburb of Cincinnati.

DODGE DENIES PLOT TO IMPRISON REMUS

TERMS RELATIONS WITH DEAD WOMAN PROPER

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1927, By International News Service)

CINCINNATI, Nov. 18.—This is Franklin Dodge Jr.'s own story, revealed exclusively today for the first time, of his relations with Mrs. Remus, who was shot and killed by her husband, George Remus, former "king of the bootleggers," in Eden Park, Cincinnati, on the morning of October 6 last.

In it, Dodge, the "man in the case," makes these significant statements:

"I was never intimate with Mrs. Remus.

"She never called me dear, nor used any such endearing terms, and I most certainly never called her sugar.

"I never conspired to keep Remus in prison, nor plotted with Mrs. Remus to keep possession of his property."

Dodge's story is of vital importance in the Remus murder trial now in progress here. Dodge is expected to be the state's star witness.

He is in seclusion in a Cincinnati hotel and for days has successfully evaded a score or more reporters who have been trailing him to get his version of the Remus case. It is said that his reason for keeping "under cover" is that he fears one of Remus' friends or associates will "bump him off."

Dodge was the former "ace" of the Department of Justice's dry enforcement army and his path crossed that of the spectacular Remus, guiding genius of a $100,000,000 liquor business, many times.

"I have not been intimate with Mrs. Remus at any time or at any place," said Dodge.

"My relations with her have always been of the most proper character.

"I only met her in connection with government service while I was in the service of the government and upon leaving the government service I only met her for the purpose of discussing her private business affairs.

"She has never given me any money except what was necessary to pay expenses that were incurred by me while in her employment. At no time have I squandered or dissipated any of the funds or property of Mr. or Mrs. Remus. I have no interest whatever in the property of either of them."

EXPLOSION FUND PASSES $1,000

Pittsburgh's great heart, touched by the suffering and want following the disastrous gas blast in Reedsdale street, North Side, hour by hour is increasing the relief fund started spontaneously and voluntarily by Sun-Telegraph readers within an hour of the blast.

Today it passed the $1,000 mark.

No appeal for funds from the public has been made pending a survey by the Red Cross disaster committee, yet already hundreds have sent in their contributions. Every mail brings additional subscriptions. Thursday's early afternoon delivery brought $60 in one check, representing $1 from each of the employes of the Schenley Apartment garage. In the same mail was $100 from the Reliance Life Insurance Employes' Association and innumerable individual subscriptions from $1 to $25.

The Sun-Telegraph is sending the money immediately to the Red Cross headquarters at 901 Ridge avenue, in the heart of the devastated territory, where it is spent to buy food and other necessities for the hundreds made homeless by the blast.

ARRESTED FOR BEGGING, PRISONER HANGS SELF

JEANNETTE, Pa., Nov. 18.—Arrested for begging, Samuel Daxko, of West Jeannette, without relatives in this country or money, ended his life in the local lockup by hanging himself with a rope to the top of his cell.

Fined

MRS. LILY BUSCH

Mrs. Lily Busch, of St. Louis, 85-year-old widow of Adolphus Busch, beer millionaire, is reported suffering from illness brought on by old age and aggravated by reports that she had been forced to pay a fine of $57,000 for attempting to smuggle goods into this country from Europe.

Dethroned!

KING BEN PURNELL

Broken and ill, King Ben Purnell, head of the House of David, the strange religious colony at Benton Harbor, Mich., found the end of his road in a St. Joseph, Mich., court. Judge Louis H. Fead refused to dissolve the Israelite colony as a public nuisance, holding that any people have the right to follow such religious lights as they may choose. He did, however, forbid King Ben to ever again enter the colony in which he had been accused of immoral practices under the guise of religious ceremonies. Five years ago King Ben, admitting 68 years, was a prepossessing, commanding figure. Today, banned from his own people, he is a broken, ailing old man, showing every year of his age plainly as he is borne for the court room on a stretcher at the end of his trial.

IT NEVER PAYS

By GILBERT ROGERS

Jerry Recovering, Margie Hears From Mabel, Who Tells Other Things

MARGIE knew relief then, and yet her impatience burned as furiously as before. Why wouldn't Mabel come to the point? What was it that she really had to say that was important enough to have stopped Margie and brought her inside like this?

"Oh," said Margie vaguely, "then——"

Mabel looked at her with her quiet, half-melancholy eyes. "I told Jerry I loved him, you see," she said slowly.

Margie's fingers opened and shut. Was it this—was it something like this that Mabel had stopped her for? Was Mabel cruel or jealous enough to want to torment her? Women did hate other women for possessing the least bit of the man they loved. Perhaps Mabel hated her like that, because maybe Jerry hadn't altogether forgotten her yet.

But Margie couldn't believe for long that Mabel would wilfully torment her or anyone else. Except for that one time in New York when her nerves had been on edge, Mabel had always been gentle. She looked gentle now.

But what did she mean by saying that she had told Jerry . . . there was something in Mabel's luminous eyes that made Margie's heart leap.

"I see," said Margie, "you told him and he—" She broke off.

"He was terrible—he didn't know what to say. Then I showed him that I did want to be truthful, and he told me the truth."

"He loves you, too?" Margie half whispered.

"He never has loved me. He never can love me."

"But why—what do you mean——"

"Because he loves you" said Mabel Farrington.

For a moment Margie could not see the other girl. It was as if a mist had come between them, and through it everything swam dimly, looked unfamiliar. Margie's heart was beating hard now, and her lips felt dry. She hadn't really heard that, she had only imagined it—that, of course, never could be so now.

But presently she saw that Mabel was watching her and had not moved. Then a little trembling smile came to Margie's lips.

"But . . ." she began faintly in a voice that seemed strange, that seemed faint and small as if it came from far away.

But Mabel did not allow her to go on. She assumed that she knew what it was that puzzled Margie.

"Oh, it's quite true, really. He told me the whole story—about you and some letter or other. He didn't believe it, of course, only he was angry at the time. Then he tried to find you and couldn't, and kept wandering around like a madman, late in the night in the rain, looking into the faces of crowds, doing crazy things like that. And of course he came down with the fever as a result."

Mabel spoke very simply, as if she were reciting some quite ordinary, quite unimportant incident, but underneath her controlled manner Margie read the tension and the bitter hurt.

She went across the room swiftly by an impulse, and half kneeling by the little elaborate Chinese chair, she put her arm affectionately around Mabel.

"Please," Mabel said stumblingly, "don't you see I'm just trying to tell you? . . . and it doesn't matter because I've gotten all over it . . . oh, I'm so miserable."

Those last revealing words came from her like a cry, and suddenly her formality, her coldness, deserted her. She looked up at Margie and she smiled now.

"But I really will get over it," she said at last. "And it's finding out how much he cares for you that has made me realize—" She could not finish.

"And you don't hate me?" Margie asked. "Because I want you to like me. I do, I do! I wouldn't be happy if you didn't. And I want to be so happy now. Oh, if you knew what it meant to me—all this you've told me."

Mabel took Margie's hand in hers. She was smiling still, her little crooked smile that looked like the kind of smile that might accompany tears.

"Just go down there—as soon as you can," was all she said. "He's waiting for you. I told him I'd try to find you . . ."

Margie walked home on something lighter than air. The wind was saying only one thing to her, the stars in the clear sky were in that splendid secret, the night, alive with delicate sounds and scents, promised only the happiness that would be hers always now. Jerry loved her, loved her—as she loved him. The world was wonderful after all. What did the tawdry cruelties of Shevlin and his kind matter, when someone like Jerry lived?

When she reached the house, there was no sign of Carlotta. From the windows of the library glowed a dull light. No doubt Adrian Martin and Shevlin were still closeted there. Discussing what? It was lucky for Margie's peace she did not know. She was to find out the results of that conference soon enough.

She went to bed, planning to take a train in the early morning. "If I can get to sleep," she thought, "A will make the time so much shorter." But, she could not win sleep that way, and for a long time lay there, thinking of the man she loved and what the future might be, before drowsiness came at last.

She was up early enough, and for once found Carlotta Brooke up, too.

Margie told her she was leaving as early as she could. Carlotta nodded.

"I'm sorry, but I won't try to stop you. It was bad enough asking you to come up here—but I was half out of my head. I can't realize now I'm the same person who did that." Then after a pause she went on: "I'll be in New York very soon myself. He left last night. I'm going to follow him."

For a moment Margie looked at her in astonishment, wondering if Carlotta's new resolution had weakened and she was still in Shevlin's thrall.

But Carlotta noticed the look and shook her head. "I want to follow him, because I want to watch him. There's something I must do—something to pay back what he did to Mark."

But Margie noticed that she did not mention what he had done to her. How own thoughts raced on to Jerry, and then she could think of nothing else.

CHAPTER XLII.

For now that she was really going to see him, it seemed to Margie she could not wait even this while. Sixty miles an hour on the steel tracks was not fast enough. At Wickford Junction, she had felt she had waited for hours for the through train. At every station she chafed at the delay. Why did they need to take so much time with luggage and mail anyway? What was the loss of a few trunks or a couple of million dollars' worth of mail compared to these priceless instants that separated her from Jerry?

And because she was so anxious, she even began to worry. Perhaps Jerry had given up hopes of finding her, had gone away—or something had occurred to keep them still apart. Margie shivered, and looked out of the window at the formless landscape.

The Connecticut cities slipped behind them, and now the train was passing flat, ugly reaches that looked as if an army had marched there, torn up trees, made pits in the earth, piled cans and debris in mounds, and gone on its way of devastation.

The tunnel at last, and the concrete platforms with the hurrying porters.

Margie had scarcely enough change to check her bag and take a subway downtown. It was fortunate, she thought, that Mrs. Brooke had bought her a round-trip ticket to Newport.

At the sight of the familiar brownstone house, she felt her breath come hard and fast, as if she had been running. Fear and longing made her feel suddenly weak, frightened.

She opened the door that was never locked and passed into the dingy hallway. Her fingers knocked at Jerry's doorway. She knew she must be deadly pale, and she felt a sense of suffocation.

Suppose he didn't really want to see her, suppose . . . but even while a dozen fantastic things leapt into her mind, the door was opened, and he was there, looking at her in the dimness of the hallway.

But only for a moment did he stand like that, for the next instant he had caught her in his arms with an articulate sound of happiness. And her head against his shoulder, his lips against her face, his heart beating loud and clear against her heart, Margie gave a little sight of unutterable peace. And now there was not any loneliness in the world, nor anything sorrowful or cruel.

Except in broken murmurs they did not speak for some time, content to look at each other, to sit close together, his arm around her, her eyes solemnly and raptly devouring him.

He was a little thinner, but in no other way did he show traces of the fever that had burned in his blood. Thinking of how he had come by that, tramping desperately through the rain, taking no care of himself, trying only to find her, Margie's heart was infinitely touched. That he should care enough for her—that was the miracle of it. She thought of his faults—no other man who ever lived had such wonderful faults!

"Oh, if I can't always love like this, if I can't always feel like this," she thought, "I shall not want to live." Thinking of the years in which she had lived independently, unsurrendered, it seemed to her now as if they were wasted years, as if she had not begun to know the meaning of anything until that day when she had first seen Jerry Evesham.

She tried to falter out an explanation of the note that Dan Shevlin had showed her. Then because he seemed now so ready to believe in her, to understand, she told him everything, her life, her hopes, her wish to escape the round of dreariness which had led her to accept Dan Shevlin's strange offer.

"I wanted to have money, luxury, everything—do you hate me for that, Jerry?" He kissed her, silent. She went on: "Only when I met you, I realized I didn't want anything except you."

But when she was through he sat very still, a dark frown on his face. Her hand timidly touched him.

"Jerry, you don't—Jerry, you're not—" But he turned to her with a quick, reassuring laugh.

"I was only thinking about this man Shevlin. I'd like to settle with him—that's all."

"Jerry—you mustn't. He's—he'd do anything. Besides that's all over—I've forgotten it." She thought of Carlotta then, turned from a helpless slave into an implacable enemy of Dan Shevlin. Shevlin had enemies enough as it was!

But Jerry only looked rueful. "Oh, I shan't be able to do anything anyway. Look here. Read this, and you'll see what I've been going through today!"

It was a telegram and it was signed with Adrian Martin's name.

"Leave for La Paz immediately. Assure Colonel Gutierez has negotiations satisfactory. On your return will put you in charge New York office."

"But—but what does it mean?" Margie asked.

"It means I've got to leave here tomorrow morning — there's a sailing then, and there won't be another for a week. As for Colonel What's-his-name, he's a kind of brigand who's always on the point of starting a revolution. I suppose Martin has made some deal with him and is backing him. I'll have to go up the Black River country to find him. But ever since I got that wire, I've been at my wits' ends. I've got to go, for it's a chance that may not come again, and yet I had to find you, too."

"But Jerry—to go now—when—when we've found each other—"

He held her close. "I know, I know—I hate it, too. But it's a big chance, I can't throw it away. And let me see—a week to get there—a week in the jungle—and a week to come back—maybe less than that."

"Three weeks — almost a month!" Margie exclaimed. "Jerry—why can't I go with you—oh, three weeks will be forever! Let me go with you!"

But he shook his head. "Not on this trip. I shall have to leave the coast, go into the interior. They're a rough crowd, too—a girl wouldn't be safe in the Black River country."

"I wouldn't be afraid if I were with you."

"But I'd be afraid for you. You don't know what it's like, Margie. Good Lord, don't you think I'd take you if there were a chance? . . . But think of it—in three weeks I'll be back, I'll have a decent job we can be married—"

Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Story by Lloyd Mayer — By John Held, Jr.

"My dear, I'm all hot and BOTHered—I mean I ACtually AM, because I'm comPLETEly BAFfled and nonPLUSSED about this odd FRESHman from BROOKlyn who ALab and NOisy are so terribly ANXious to LURE into their fraTERnity, my dear, because I mean he LEAVES me COLD, sort of—you know the TYPE! I mean I honestly WONder why it IS they are so awfully ANXious to anNEX him because he's ACtually the MOST nauseous PIPsqueak I've ever enCOUNtered, my dear. But I think MEN have AWfully sort of DIFferent ideas than GIRLS on whether a boy is inTRIguing or not, don't you really think they DO, my dear? Because I know HEAPS of youths who I think are AWfully 'ITy' and everything, but who OTHer boys think are simply VILE, my dear. I mean I s'pose it's just because they're JEALous or something, which just SHOWS you how sort of SMALL these MEN are, my dear, because I mean imagine a GIRL being jealous of aNOTHer girl just because she was atTRACtive to MEN! But that is the iDEA that practicably everybody HAS, my dear, don't you really think it IS? And I HONestly think it's the FOULest CALumny or something because I simply VOW I've NEVer felt JEALous of any girl who men have told me they thought was terribly alLUring or something because I honestly think that nine times out of TEN a girl that men RAVE about like that is a proMIScuous PETter or something and just beNEATH your NOtice—I mean I ACtually DO!"

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife" — By Adele Garrison

Quick Thinking by Madge Spoils Philip Veritzen's Plan to Have Her Alone.

I DO NOT think that Philip Veritzen ever had been so astonished in his life as he was when I replied to his announcement that we would have our conference in the country, instead of at his offices, with the ultimatum that I would not go unless I could ask Lillian Underwood to be of the party.

"By all means," he said, smilingly. "Mrs. Underwood is always an addition to any party."

Then he permitted himself a tiny slur.

"This is not a general rule of your's, is it?" he asked. "I remember one day you could not attend a conference of mine because you had a drive and dinner engagement with—"

"With Maj. Grantland, an old friend of mine and my husband's," I returned steadily, wondering grimly if Dicky would bolster my statement if he were present, "to whom we both are indebted for the saving of our little boy's life. I had not seen him for many months, during which time he had been absent in another country. Besides, that was only a short jaunt, while, if I understand you correctly, this conference——"

"Is to be an all-day affair," he said, still with the smile upon his lips, which I guessed masked annoyance—even resentment—at what he no doubt termed my audacity. "You know the conditions of Sunday traffic. To get to any place sufficiently distant from the city to have the sense of seclusion and country life which I wish, will take two or three hours, and our return is likely to be late. So warn my old friend, Mrs. Underwood, of this when you convey to her my very pressing invitation to make "a third at our 'party.' If she is as busy as she usually is, she will want to bring some work along with her. Luckily, the car is large enough to permit even a drawing board to be tucked away in it."

"May I telephone her? I suppose you will wish to start soon?"

"Of course," he assented cordially, and I realized that, with his usual perfect poise, he meant to make the best of the situation and act as if the inclusion of Lillian had been his own plan.

He was "saving his face," Chinese fashion, but I was only too glad to aid him in the attempt. I had anticipated an unpleasant interview, from which it appeared I was to be spared.

"I am sure it was your original idea," I said smiling a bit saucily at him as I took up the telephone receiver. "You were so busy it simply slipped your mind, that is all."

He took a hasty step toward me, then stopped, but there was a flaming look in his eyes which made me realize that I must guard my face and voice most carefully when I was talking to him.

Lillian's voice came promptly over the telephone.

"'Lo, Madge! What's the dope? Is the lifeboat needed?"

I cut her short hastily, for her voice came so clearly that I was afraid Mr. Veritzen, standing so near me, might hear it and guess that I had anticipated needing her.

"I have a most delightful invitation for you," I said. "A whole day in the country, a motor drive, a dinner, and the opportunity to bring your work along if you wish."

The beauty killer

HERE, it strikes a young and beautiful woman—and in a few years her charm and freshness will have fled. . . . Here, it grips a man at the height of his promise—soon he will have lost his vim and energy—to sink, with blighted prospects, into obscurity. . . .

What a deadly affliction constipation is! What havoc it wreaks upon human health and happiness! Thief of youth. Robber of strength. Evil forerunner of disease and misery! It plays its insidious role in every walk of life. Filling stout hearts with despair. Blasting high hopes. Blighting bright careers. Destroying health! Killing beauty!

What a blessing that there is safe relief from this dreadful scourge! More — prevention! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. To prevent it ever beginning its deadly work.

Why ALL-BRAN alone is effective

ALL-BRAN has "bulk." This bulk absorbs moisture and carries it through the intestines, at the same time gently distending them — cleansing, purifying, eliminating poisonous wastes.

How different from part-bran products which contain so little bulk that there is hardly enough to have any effect at all—often none! That is why doctors recommend ALL-BRAN instead of part-bran products. Because ALL-BRAN is 100% bran.

Different from habit-forming drugs!

And contrast ALL-BRAN with dangerous drugs and pills—which become useless unless the dose is constantly increased. ALL-BRAN is delicious with milk or cream. Fruits or honey, added, make it an extra treat. Let it soak in the milk a few moments to bring out all its nut-like flavor. Serve it with other cereals. In soups. Try the recipes on every package. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Don't run needless risks with a part-bran substitute. At best, it can be but partially effective. Insist on genuine Kellogg's—the original ALL-BRAN. Sold by all grocers. Served at hotels, restaurants and cafeterias. On diners. Made by the Kellogg Company in Battle Creek, Mich. Write for free "Treatise on Constipation."

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

Life in the Open Air a Source of Health

DR. COPELAND

LAST summer I spent a month in California. Lots of people think of that state as a winter resort. They do not realize how attractive it is in summer.

What makes California so appealing to one northern born, is its abundance of fruits and flowers. In my home climate we have blossoms and vegetables and fruits during the warm months. In the late fall and winter we have naked trees and plants, and bare or snow-covered earth.

To me there is no lack of beauty in the sepia tints of our trees in winter. But the trouble about the season is that too many of us stay indoors, not going out to enjoy the winter scenery.

There is no denying the greater appeal of bright colors, the gorgeous reds and greens, the perfume of the flowers and the flavor of the freshly picked fruits. All these are to be had every day of the year in California. What a novelty to a northerner it is to see blossoms, green fruit and ripe fruit all at the same time on the same tree.

In coastal California the summer nights are cool. Blankets are in demand. No matter how hot the days there is refreshment at night. The coolness of the evenings, even the very early hours after sunset, drives many indoors. This is a pity because the outdoor air is invigorating and health-giving. No matter where you live or what the season may be, out-of-door living is desirable.

We are in that time of year when inclement and severe weather is upon us in the North. I beg of you not to be tempted to avoid the open air. It will do you good now, just as the glorious out-of-doors of California does you good in summer.

One of the things I hate about winter is to witness the gradual fading of the tanned skins of my friends and associates. To me no other complexion can possibly equal the sunburned and tanned faces of out-of-doors lovers. If I had my way that complexion would be the perennial "style."

Sunlight is a great antiseptic, a germicide, a blood builder, a developer of resistance to disease. You want to be strong and healthy—there is no surer route to that goal than the way of the sunbeams. Travel it daily!

Protect your feet against cold and wet, wear garments suitable to the season, and get out into the air for at least an hour or two every day.

This is good advice, not only for the men of your family, but also for the women. Even if you live on a farm and are the busy housewife, give yourself the luxury of walking about a bit and feeling the rough earth under your feet.

It is all very well to look out upon the weather, but the way to make it serve you is to face it in the open. To do so regularly will add years to your expectation of life.

Broken Hearts Do Kill, Asserts Fay King

By FAY KING.

DO THEY ever die of broken hearts?

Sometimes!

But not when they are very young. And not when they are very old.

For Youth can weather the heartache and disappointment and soon finds itself responding to new interests and new loves.

And when we are older and wiser the ways of life seem less important and we have lived to learn that nothing really matters much after all.

But sometimes when she is neither young nor old, and finds the mate she trusts and adores turning from her to some one who is not much younger and not much prettier, and there seems no reason why he should prefer this other one who has forced herself into his life—the wife wilts and dies of a broken heart!

He cannot guess the many little ways in which he betrays his wandering interest to his mate, who loves him so much she senses the slightest danger to their love and home!

Yes! even before he himself is aware!

She is the gentle woman who cannot fight the other woman. Such a wife may never by a look or a word betray her breaking heart. She just suffers in silence—and dies of this malady.

And the others go on! Apparently happy and successful! But I believe that some day, in some way, they pay for the heart-break.

Not in the same way, perhaps, but in some way. Others may think because they are gay and happy, there is no justice in the world.

Wait!

Time brings many to trial!

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Saturday, November 19

The horoscope is a guide to tell us where we stand in the pilgrimage of evolution.—EMMA LEE.

ACCORDING to some of the lunar transits, this day may unfold some unlooked for visitation, sudden and abrupt in nature. It may involve change, removal or travel and may leave some irregular or unconventional aspects.

It would be well to handle this matter with caution and restraint, with the temper under control. Certain literary or artistic interests may be promoted by correspondence. Secret agreements or subtle connections should thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate an unlooked for change, journey or removal during the year. While the change may not be entirely disruptive it may be irregular or unconvential. Affairs should be handled with moderation and precaution, with a curb on tongue and temper.

A child born on this day may be restless, nervous and fond of change. It may have some singular traits or gifts, perhaps, writing poetry or fantastic literature.

Notable Nativity: Billy Sunday, Evangelist.

Atlantic Gasoline fits more motors . . . meets more driving conditions . . . suits more motorists than any other brand of motor fuel—at any price

HAVE you ever tried to jot down in your mind all the varying conditions under which a motor fuel must operate? . . . Ever thought of the many-sided qualities it must have to do a good job?

There are many types of motors, in all sorts of condition. . . . Some are new, some old, some "middle aged"—some clean, some dirty—some carefully tuned up, some with poorly timed valves or ignition, some with carburetors imperfectly adjusted.

They must start at all degrees of temperature . . . operate in all kinds of weather . . . pull all kinds of loads up all kinds of grades . . . run slowly in traffic, accelerate quickly on getaways, travel swiftly along the open road. Yet they are expected to run smoothly at all times—to prevent bearing-destroying "knocks," to deliver maximum power and mileage.

Surely no ordinary gasoline can meet requirements like that. Neither can a motor fuel with some one highly touted characteristic alone do it—no matter how fancy its name, color or price.

It takes a balanced motor fuel—a gasoline roundly efficient—high in all qualities.

Atlantic is that kind of gasoline. All the resources, brains and efforts of one of the greatest refining organizations in the land are concentrated on making it so. It embodies every worth-while improvement known to the industry. It is constantly being made better and better.

That this is the kind of motor fuel most motorists want is proved by the overwhelming fact that in the past five years more than half the gasoline used in Pennsylvania was produced at the Atlantic refineries in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and Franklin.

Lawrence Tibbett proved one thing beyond doubt in his recital at Syria Mosque last night, that no claque from Kansas City or thereabouts was ever responsible for his success at the Metropolitan Opera. Voice students need not inquire from whom Tibbett learned his art. It is genius; he built it from within himself.

That Pittsburgh should be favored by two such recitals in one week—Farrar's and last night's concert—is almost incredible. Tibbett's program was wisely chosen to display his voice, his temperament, his musicianship. There were old Italian airs, rarely heard lieder, operatic music and stunning ballads. The singer was equally at home in any type of song, but his ballads and the Pagliacci Prolog were superb. We have heard "Caro Mio Ben" sung and declaimed. Disciples of bel canto say it must be sung. Tibbett went half way and should have emphasized his declamation; had he sung it, the song would not have been so fortunate a beginning. The Scarlatti air that came as encore was truly of that period. To sing Handel with such breadth of phrasing and such emission of gorgeous tone demands superior technique in breathing.

Schumann's minatures were the true test of Tibbett's musical nature, but I regretted the necessity for changing the high tones of "Ich Grolle Nicht;" I believe the original text would have been as effective in spite of the singer's intense dramatic spirit. Tibbett's voice is not a brilliant baritone but it does have a ghostly quality that haunts one long after his songs are silent. That very quality with his fine intelligence and discriminating taste for tone color made the Pagliacci Prolog with several encores—Deems Taylor's "Captain Stratton's Fancy" and old English drinking song "Down Among the Dead Men"— real triumphs. His English songs were distinguished for their diction and straightforward singing; in these Tibbett was like Bispham. His Russian songs were lucious as a May night on the Volga, or dark as winter on the steppes; Chaliapin could not have done "The Song of the Flea" with more biting satire.

The audience seemed willing to wait for many encores and was right happy to hear Brahams' "Sapphic Ode" and "Mandalay." Sharing honors with Lawrence Tibbett, was his accompanist, Edward Harris, who also appeared as piano soloist and composer. Harris was always more than a mere accompanist; while he never intruded, I could not help listening to the beautiful tone he gave to Schumann, the caress in Rachmaninoff's song, and the pedal effects he was able to add to his own charming and nonsensical "Jabberwocky."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

With Mellon Wedding Over, Social World Returns to Bridges, Teas and Debutante Affairs

NOW that Sarah Mellon is married, the social world is again turning its attention to the usual activities and events such as bridges, teas and debutante affairs.

And yesterday saw one of the most brilliant "coming out" events of the season, the tea given for that popular debbie, Marjorie Babcock, daughter of Fred R. Babcock. The tea was held, of course, in the Babcock home.

Because of Mr. Babcock's illness, Mrs. Edward Vose Babcock, aunt of the debutante, and Mrs. Albert W. Thompson, her cousin, assisted in receiving. They stood in the small reception room at the left of the entrance to the residence.

Marjorie was distinctive in a gown of rose petal velvet, simply designed and untrimmed except for a crystal ornament at the girdle, which held in place a slight side drapery, and for tiny crystal buttons on the long sleeves of the frock. She carried a shower bouquet of Cordes roses, a small flame-colored bloom, mingled with orchids and bouvardia, and showered with lilies of the valley. Mrs. Babcock's gown was of hyacinth blue crepe ripline, with pearl and silver embroidery, and she wore a corsage of orchids. Orchid transparent velvet was worn by Mrs. Thompson. A crystal ornament was placed at the side of the gown. The orchids which she carried were of the same color as her dress.

The decorations were striking, among the prettiest I have seen this season. The front veranda of the home was enclosed and hung with smilax vines to form a nook for the musicians. A marquee at the side of the house, together with the dining room and conservatory, was used for serving. In the dining room the tea table was ornamented with yellow roses and orchids with purple heather for accent, and lighted by ivory candles in silver holders. A buffet table in the marquee held yellow and bronze chrysanthemums, arranged with greens, and orange candles in silver candelabra. Standards of autumn tinted chrysanthemums added rich color to the entire first floor of the home.

Assisting the hostesses were Mrs. Raymond St. Ledger Babcock, Mrs. Howard Noble, Mrs. Gordon Fisher, Mrs. James Holland Hammond, Mrs. William Watson Smith, Mrs. Daniel M. Clemson, Mrs. James Francis Burke, Mrs. Edward Alexander Pitcairn, Mrs. Sidney Hammond, Mrs. Benjamin R. B. Townsend, Mrs. Stephen Stone, Mrs. Samuel Harden Church, Mrs. William Morris Furey, Mrs. John Parker Knable, Mrs. Samuel Alfred McClung, Jr., Mrs. Howard Hale McClintic, Mrs. William Terrell Johnson and Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, surely a long list.

The debutante had as her aides some sister debs, of course. They were Mary Louise Johnson, Juliet Lea Hillman, Anne Louise Marshall, Anne King Scott, Mary Childs, Mary Mellon McClung, Florence Wainwright and Frances Fitzgerald.

Marjorie is going to be one of the most entertained of the buds of the season, all of whom, for that matter, are to be much feted.

This afternoon, you remember, Mrs. Stephen Stone, of Forbes street, is giving a luncheon in her home for Marjorie. And Monday night Mrs. James Holand Hammond will entertain 100 guests at a theater party at the Nixon. And this will be followed by dancing in the Hotel Schenley ballroom, to which event several hundred additional guests have been asked. This party at the Nixon, I believe, is the first theater party given this season for a deb.

What will undoubtedly be another much enjoyed event will be a dinner dance the William Morris Fureys, of Wilkins avenue, will give in the Longue Vue Country Club Saturday, November 26, with Marjorie as the honor guest. Another dinner dance planned for this much entertained debutante will be that to be given by her uncle and aunt, the Edward Vose Babcocks, on December 20 in their Ellsworth avenue home. Mr. Babcock is also going to entertain at a dance for his daughter, to be held on December 23 in the University Club. And a luncheon will be given for Marjorie on December 14, when Mrs. Howard Noble will entertain in her home on Shady avenue.

* * *

The beautiful marquee erected on the grounds of the R. B. Mellon home for the wedding of Sarah is going to be the scene of another social event. For on Monday the Woman's Industrial Exchange will hold its annual Christmas sale in this setting, straight from the Arabian Nights it would seem.

Of course there will be all kinds of gifts suitable for Christmas presents. And there are to be many enticing things, all priced under $1, which the children may buy for their friends.

While they are doing their shopping the youngsters are to be entertained with a Punch and Judy show. And there is to be a huge pie, larger than little Jack Horner ever dreamed of, holding instead of plums bushels of toys.

The sale hours are from 11 to 5. Cards will interest the grown-ups in the afternoon and there will be a dinner dance in the evening.

In charge of the children's amusements will be Mrs. William Larimer Jones, Jr., and she is being assisted by Mrs. Charles C. Heard, Mrs. T. Howe Nimick, Mrs. Alfred G. Wells and Mrs. Thomas C. Wurts.

And in charge of cards is Mrs. Birney K. McMechen, assisted by Mrs. Charles Arbuthnot, Mrs. Richard H. Hawkins, Mrs. James Sidney Hammond, Mrs. George D. Macbeth, Mrs. Wallace H. Rowe and Mrs. William Zang.

Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl is chairman of the tea committee with Mrs. George B. Berger, Mrs. David D. Gill, Mrs. Leslie Johnston and Mrs. G. Greer Coolidge as her aides.

In charge of the table of children's clothes will be Mrs. Harry Darlington, aided by Mrs. William Penn Snyder, Jr., and Mrs. Walter F. Heron.

There are to be lovely negligees on sale with Mrs. B. F. Jones, Jr., assisted by Mrs. Charles F. Holdship, Mrs. Harvey Norton Van Voorhis and Mrs. William S. Moorhead, in charge.

Mrs. William B. Trainer is chairman of the edibles, assisted by Mrs. Frederick C. Atwood, Mrs. George L. Claypool, Mrs. Dorwin J. Donnelly, Mrs. Howard S. Evans, Mrs. A. Rex Flinn, Miss Martha Jamison, Mrs. Richard B. Mellon, Mrs. George W. McKee, Mrs. B. Preston Schoyer and Mrs. C. C. Sandels.

Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, Jr., will be in charge of fancy work, aided by Miss Sarah Bissell and Mrs. Carroll P. Davis.

Many exquisitely painted articles will be sold at a table in charge of Mrs. John F. Penney, chairman; Mrs. Horace Forbes Baker, Mrs. Samuel A. McClung and Mrs. Gordon Fisher.

Snowy linens for the home will be sold under the direction of Miss Nell Stewart, chairman; Mrs. William C. Moreland, Mrs. Charles F. Orr, Mrs. Moses Atwood, Mrs. Herbert DuPuy and Miss Beatrice Hawkins.

Taking care of tickets will be Mrs. John D. Brown, Mrs. Charles A. Foster, Mrs. Edward B. Scull and Mrs. Charles Wharton, Jr.

And Mrs. Dorwin J. Donnelly will be in charge of all arrangements for the dinner dance.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. John Taggart Brown, of North Fremont avenue, Bellevue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jane Taggart Brown, to Wellman Cotton Daniels, of Syracuse, N. Y., son of Mrs. Charles H. Daniels, of Somerville, Mass.

EPOCH CLUB MEMBERS DISCUSS OWN HOBBIES

Epoch Club members are finding their year's programs even more interesting than they had anticipated. With each member talking on her own particular hobby, it was expected that the meetings would hold more than ordinary interest, but expectations are being exceeded as the sessions come and go. Yesterday morning, in the apartment of Mrs. Thomas L. Painter, in the Ruskin, Mrs. Frank H. Rea told of her hobby, which was listed under the title, "Teaching Sabbath School," and Mrs. E. J. Searles discussed hers under the topic, "Penmarks in Verse." Mrs. Rea, always a fascinating speaker, gave the history of the children of Israel and told of the building of Solomon's Temple, then followed that through with the idea that people are the temples of God and the light of the world. What the Temple of Solomon was to the children of Israel, the church of today represents to the women of this generation, Mrs. Rea believes. Mrs. Searles contributed readings of her own poems, all of those she read having been published. Since biographies are also made a part of each day's program, Mrs. Arthur Hall Smith reviewed John Barrymore's "Confessions of an Actor." Today the club members will visit the international art exhibit and will be given gallery guidance by Miss Margaret M. Lee.

That a woman can have a career and also be a mother was proved to the satisfaction of Woman's City Club members last night when they were addressed at dinner by Mrs. Lillian M. Gilbreth, of Montclair, N. J., president of Gilbreth, Incorporated, consulting engineers and mother of 11 children. Mrs. Gilbreth, who is a woman of fine, strong personality, worked side by side with her husband who was president of the company, and after his death, three years ago, she became, not only the head of her large family, but head of the business as well. Her talk last night was largely on adapting oneself to one's job. Mrs. Gilbreth's oldest child is a son, aged 22, and her youngest is 5 years old.

Mrs. C. A. Wanamaker, president of the Woman's Club of Aspinwall, welcomed 20 new members into the club at the meeting yesterday afternoon. The school committee arranged the program, which was given entirely by high school pupils under the direction of Miss Edna Keffer, supervisor of music. Franklin D. Keboch, principal of the schools, addressed the meeting, urging the women to visit the schoolrooms during work hours and not only during specially arranged programs. Miss Marion Swan gave two piano solos, Miss Virginia McConnell sang, accompanied by Miss Keffer; Miss Selma Wolforth read to piano accompaniment by Miss Nancy Lea; Leroy Anderson sang with accompaniments by a trio composed of Miss Caroline Riley, Howard Seyfert and Homer Wickline, and in conclusion there was a chorus of 40 voices. The school committee will have its annual bazar tomorrow in the clubhouse.

Eighteenth century music will make up the program for the P. M. I. Club meeting on Monday night, November 28, in the Pittsburgh Musical Institute.

BOGGS & BUHL

COMMISSIONERS CAN'T COLLECT TWO PAYS

By International News Service.

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., Nov. 18.—Jefferson county commissioners who asked the state attorney general's office for an opinion as to whether commissioners in sixth class counties who also serve as poor directors would receive additional compensation were advised today that they are entitled to no extra compensation.

William A. Schnader, special deputy attorney general, informed the commissioners that the Legislature's act of 1927 nullified the act of 1917 which provided that sixth class county commissioners serving as poor directors would receive more money than those who did not.

There are 16 sixth class counties in Pennsylvania: Armstrong, Bradford, Bucks, Butler, Carbon, Crawford, Cumberland, Franklin, Indiana, Jefferson, Lawrence, Lebanon, Lycoming, Mercer, Somerset and Venango, all of which are affected by Schnader's opinion.

Schnader, in a letter to the commissioners of this county, explained that the salary of sixth class county commissioners was fixed at $3,000 and that this also covered their services as poor directors. It is understood that all commissioners of counties in this class also serve as poor directors.

NUISANCE TO POLICE GETS YEAR SENTENCE

"Your conduct has been such that you have become a common nuisance to the police of Pittsburgh, I am informed," Visiting Judge James C. Furst of Bellefonte told Louis Tuck, Negro, 21, of 3544 Butler street, yesterday in Criminal Court before imposing a workhouse sentence of one to two years. Tuck was convicted of stealing the automobile of John Blacksmith, a merchant of 3625 Liberty avenue, on September 13. The youth is deformed, having been born with but two fingers.

$3.25 ROBBERY CHARGE BRINGS $25,000 SUIT

Out of an alleged theft of $3.25 has grown a damage suit for 8,000 times that sum—$25,000. In Common Pleas Court Betty O. Thoma, Greensburg photographer, filed that suit against O. S. Masters of Elizabeth, charging false arrest when she was imprisoned and later discharged on a charge of a $3.25 highway robbery.

If you feel like 60 at the age of 45—think this over! It may help get back your pep of earlier years. You sometimes take ordinary laxative pills and waters, but they don't dislodge the deadly bacteria that cause senility and make you look and feel old years before you should. Take PARTOLA, the internal antiseptic and laxative that positively cleans out the poison wastes, then see your natural strength return, health improve, ambition and power of endurance increase. Constipation disappears when you take Partola. All good druggists sell regular box 50¢, double size box 60c.

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells of Pleasant Home Treatment to Bring Swift Relief.

So-called Stomach Troubles—indigestion, dyspepsia, gas, sourness, etc., are, in probably nine cases out of ten, evidence of "too much acid in the stomach" souring the food, causing the formation of gas and starting acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes a full, oppressive burning feeling known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate stomach lining. Get rid of Gas and Acidity, and you get rid of indigestion.

To stop or prevent the sourness and gas, to neutralize the stomach acids and keep the stomach sweet and free from indigestion, a teaspoonful or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia should be taken in a little water after eating or whenever gas, sourness, pain or acidity is felt. This quickly sweetens the stomach, neutralizes the acidity, stops the pain and is harmless and inexpensive to use.

Bisurated Magnesia, powder or tablets only, can be obtained from any drug store and its daily use keeps the stomach in fine condition, enabling it to do its work without the aid of artificial digestants.

Puts An End To Bunion Pains

No Need to Suffer Another Day

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to reduce inflammation of swollen toe joints and help get them down to normal, and that is to apply Moone's Emerald Oil night and morning.

Ask McCulloch's 10 Convenient Drug Stores, or any first-class druggist, for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces lasts a long time, and furthermore, if one bottle Emerald Oil does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

Special note: People who want to reduce swollen or varicose veins should get a bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at once. Applied night and morning as directed they will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

CAPITOL OFFICE BUILDING BILL ILLEGAL

By International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 18.—The Attorney General's office yesterday made public copies of a formal opinion addressed to State Treasurer Samuel S. Lewis, in which he was advised that the state cannot legally use the $1,000,000 appropriated by the last Legislature for the erection of the North Office Building, a unit in the Capitol group.

The act, as passed and approved by the Governor, provided $1,000,000 "for the erection, construction and completion" of the second unit in the Capitol extension program. The opinion said that unless the building could be completed for $1,000,000 the money could not be used.

The opinion pointed out that the present act was identical in wording with that under which the work was started on the South Office Building, now completed. Such action, it was held, is an administrative precedent, but nevertheless not one which could be legally defended if action questioning the course were started. The opinion was signed by Special Deputy Attorney General William A. Schnader.

Gov. John S. Fisher, advised earlier in the week of the stand the Attorney General's office would take, took steps to proceed with the erection of the building by ordering funds taken from the highway department, money so taken to be included in the general appropriation bill in 1929 and returned to the department.

Motor Square After Battle

By HARRY KECK, Sun-Telegraph Sports Editor.

JOE DUNDEE, the world's welterweight champion, who recently was in the limelight for his refusal to go through with a 10-round title battle with Ace Hudkins in Los Angeles because his $60,000 guarantee was not forthcoming from the promoter, may appear in the main bout at Motor Square Garden a week from next Monday night.

Negotiations are now under way to have the titleholder meet Young Saylor of Charleroi, undefeated and recently a winner over Jack Zivic in the same ring. Matchmaker Johnny Ray expects to close the battle today or tomorrow. Dundee was matched with Cuddy DeMarco here before going to the coast for the Hudkins bout, but the battle fell through when DeMarco was unable to guarantee that he would come in over the weight limit of the class.

Dundee probably will meet Hudkins in Madison Square Garden, New York, on the night of December 12, according to word from New York today.

Phil Goldstein will leave New York tonight to return home for his third bout with Tommy Crowley at Motor Square Garden Monday night. Phil has been training with a number of good boxers and is confident he will be primed to win decisively this time. Crowley has been doing his training in the Pittsburgh Lyceum gym.

Teddy Welch of McKeesport has called off his 10-round bout with Billy Rose at Cincinnati tomorrow night because of a swollen eye. His next start will be against Harry Taylor at Johnstown, December 6.

RYAN BEATS TOMOSKY

Tommy Ryan defeated Andy Tomosky in the 10-round windup at McKeesport last night. It was a more or less colorless affair with Ryan's experience giving him the edge. Nick Gibbons of McKeesport weathered two knockdowns in the first round to come back and get a referee's verdict of a draw with Stanley Simmons in the six-round semifinal. Joe Randall defeated Terry McGovern in six rounds and Al Radicy won by a technical knockout over Charley Beverly in five rounds, the referee stopping the bout.

Leo Kurburski of Swissvale was disqualified for holding and roughing William Ortlieb in the main bout of an amateur boxing show under the auspices of the North Side A. C. in German Masonic hall last night. Louis Santucci defeated Dan McFadden; Joe Brown won over Bob Smaller; Freddie Halsall knocked out Joe Stauff in the first round; A. Iovino shaded John Haggerty in four rounds, and Mike Hogan won over Ernie Sesto in an extra round in the other bouts.

Jimmy Prescott of Carnegie and Marty McHale of McKeesport have been matched for the semi-final to the Tug Phillips-Jackie Murray 10-round return bout featuring the first show of the new Carnegie Boxing Club on the night of December 1.

ROBERTSON CANCELS BOUT

Homer Robertson, Boston Negro middleweight, formerly of Pittsburgh, yesterday canceled his scheduled 10-round bout with Leo Lamski at Boston tonight because of a heavy cold, which has prevented him from training.

Jack Dorval, former protege of Jack Kearns, and Benny Touchstone box the main bout of a heavyweight show in Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight. Joe Sekyra of Dayton and Jimmy Byrne meet in the semi-final, and Joe Monte and George LaRocco in another 10-rounder.

Phil Scott, the English heavyweight champion, who was knocked out in the first round of his American debut by Knute Hansen recently, has been signed to box Monte Munn in Madison Square Garden a week from Monday night. Other Garden matches just closed include: Johnny Risko vs. Paulino Uzcudun, November 25, and Bud Taylor, bantamweight champion, vs. Tony Canzoneri, December 1.

BOUTS FOR THE ZIVICS

Jack Zivic has been matched with Billy Light of St. Paul at St. Paul, December 2. His brother, Pete Zivic, meets Ward Sparks at Detroit, December 9.

Sandy Seifert, North Side heavyweight, has been matched to box Jack Gross, Philadelphia southpaw, in the semi-final to the Paulino-Risko bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, Friday night of next week, and, on November 28, meets Emmett Rocco of Ellwood City in their postponed return battle at Youngstown.

Bear, Red Chances Even

By WILLIAM LEISER,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18.—An even break was predicted yesterday by four men who know big game signs. On the word of four who have played and played well, odds that are mentioned on Cards and Bears mean less than nothing at all.

Two of the four are old Bears themselves, and two are Stanford Reds. Cort Majors, wonder team captain, and Harold Brick Muller, probably the greatest end in the world, who know all the angles involved, assured California enthusiasts at a Fairmont Hotel gathering today that Golden Bear possibilities for victory tomorrow are practically as good as the Cards.

Within the same hour Halfback George Bogue, whose punch was a big factor in Stanford's championship team last season, and former Capt. Jack Patrick, who made the Reds' one touchdown in a period of four years' competition with wonder teams, warned followers of Glenn Warner's men that Stanford holds little, if any real edge over the Bears. All four mentioned a possible Stanford advantage in experience, which is followed by a probable advantage in organization, and all four promptly forgot this same edge, basing entire forecasts of results on the fight, the spirit, the breaks and psychology of the game as it will be played Saturday.

observing fan the opinion that Kirkman should also be numbered among the missing of 1928, as before going to W. & J. he had played one year of varsity football at Western Reserve University in Cleveland.

This year at Western Reserve, one year on the freshman team and two years on the varsity team at W. & J. completed four years of college football or three years of varsity competition for Kirkman, it was pointed out.

WHEN William Theurer, graduate manager of athletics at Washington and Jefferson, was asked about this, he readily confirmed it.

"Yes, it is true that Kirkman played a year at Western Reserve, and after playing two years for W. & J. on the varsity he will, after this season, be lost to our team," he said.

"In addition to the freshman or one-year residence rule and the migratory regulation, we also have in force at Washington and Jefferson the rule that restricts every student to three years of varsity competition.

"Consequently, Kirkman cannot play for us after present season, and we shall lose not only our entire backfield, but also a large part of our line."

Johnny Morrison Is Now Baseball Cutlaw

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

KIRKMAN LOST TO W. & J.

BEFORE Johnny Morrison can get back in organized ball to pitch for any club to which he may be transferred by the Pirate management, it will be necessary for him to obtain reinstatement from Commissioner K. M. Landis through President John A. Heydler, of the National League.

For Morrison is no longer merely a suspended player. After he had ignored three notices to report, President Dreyfuss says, Johnny was taken off the Pittsburgh club's "suspended" list and placed in the "ineligible" column.

THE difference in status is such that whereas the Pittsburgh club alone could have reinstated Morrison while he was merely "suspended," only Commissioner Landis can reinstate the pitcher now that the latter has been made ineligible.

Morrison must apply for reinstatement to President Heydler of the National League, and the latter will then certify the application to Commissioner Landis, who alone may determine whether or not the application shall be granted and who may grant it upon such terms and conditions as the facts may in his judgment warrant.

AS MATTERS stand now, the Pittsburgh club cannot release Morrison unconditionally, much less trade him to another major league club or send him to the minors, before he has been reinstated by the Commissioner.

The case of Morrison shows again how quickly a ball player may hit the chutes if he makes the mistake of taking baseball as a free-and-easy proposition instead of a serious business.

Only four years ago Johnny won 25 games, being the first Pittsburgh pitcher since Howard Camnitz in 1909 to pile up that number of victories in a season. Just how he stands now in the big show may be judged from the fact that the Pittsburgh club has twice been able to obtain waivers on him from all of the 15 other clubs in the major ranks.

MORRISON'S transfer from the "suspended" to the ineligible" list has another effect on the Pittsburgh playing club's roster. It gives the Pirates room for one more player than they would have had if Morrison had remained merely "suspended."

In other words the Bucs are in a position to put on two players if they so desire without making any removals. The reservation list, originally full, was reduced to 39, or one below the limit by the release of Heinie Groh to Charlotte in the South Atlantic Association, recently, and now it is cut to 38 by the ineligibility of the Kentuckian. Suspended players count in the limit of 40 players, but ineligible players do not.

FROM this it will be seen that Manager Owen Bush, in looking over the list of big league players upon whom waivers have been asked—the list sent to him by President Barney Dreyfuss this week—will be in a position to claim at least two players if there are any pastimers in the lot who happen to catch his fancy.

If necessary, room for others could be made by putting through at once deals for the transfer to the minors of some players whom it is planned to send there later in part payment for Pitcher Fussell and others.

Recently a list of names was published showing the men who had played three years at Wash-Jeff and, therefore, would be lost to the Red and Black for the 1928 season.

W.-J. May Use Local Grid

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 18.—Possibility of W. & J. playing a third game of football in Pittsburgh next season is seen with the announcement of the Pitt and Carnegie Tech schedules, which leaves November 17 free from games in the Steel City for either one of the major Pittsburgh elevens. Pitt will be at Nebraska on that date and Carnegie will be playing Notre Dame at South Bend. If Wash-Jeff should decide to go into Pittsburgh on that date the Presidents will play Bucknell.

The game a week ago with the "Thundering Bisons" at Lewisburg was played under the provisions of a two-year contract which permits Wash.-Jeff. to name any suitable location in the western end of the state for the 1928 combat. With limited seating capacity at College Field it has not been intended to play the game in Washington and Johnstown, where W. & J. played Carnegie in 1926 before a big throng, has been most often mentioned as the site for the 1928 clash with Bucknell.

It is understood that the Presidents have an option on Forbes Field for November 17 if they desire to play in Pittsburgh. The Pitt Stadium is also mentioned as a possible site for the game.

THROUGH the SPORT LENS by HAVEY BOYLE

HAVEY BOYLE.

THE death of Tiger Flowers, once middleweight champion, serves to recall that under a cynical cloak the heart of boxing reacts to the time-honored conventions, the rigid morality and the homespun virtues as do the hearts of more ordinary pursuits. For Tiger Flowers, bothered with the handicaps that beset his race, yet owning the moral courage to wear his spiritual heart on his sleeve, won as many friends in the hardened realm of boxing by his honest devotion to things of the spirit as he would have won among more Godly men. Throughout the strange world of boxing men, Tiger Flowers was as much noted for his religious convictions as he was noted for his boxing ability.

His attention to his prayers was as well known as his ability to defeat the great Greb. And even in the skeptical whirl of the ring he was honored for this sincere devotion. Thus, while the boys of the ring game affect a worldliness that might shock a spinster, the respect this class showed Tiger Flowers was plain proof that, in spite of cynicisms and a seeming lack of the spiritual in their systems, the boys of the tough racket respond to a good example the same as persons, rated higher in the accepted scale, respond.

Flowers' place in ring history, of course, is assured by his having dethroned the great Greb to become middleweight champion. His capacity for achievement is well-marked by the way he came up from obscurity to national boxing acclaim. But transcending these, in a romantic way, at least, was his naive, earnest and inspiring manner of showing the figures of a hard old way of life that an unashamed devotion to a spiritual cause is even more appealing in a fighting man than to men in less arduous pursuits of prosaic life.

He was a colored man, often suffering from the fact that at first people would not take him seriously—or his claims. He was a deacon in a church. He was a fighter. A strange combination to be sure—but a good one as every boxing man in the world is willing to say.

INVADERS ARRIVE IN CITY TODAY

By JESS CARVER.

PITTSBURGH'S next-to-the-last football invader of the season, Detroit University, will roll into town late this afternoon, bent on taking a punch and getting away with it, at Carnegie Tech's varsity out on the Forbes Field gridiron tomorrow afternoon.

Shooting punches at Tech and getting by with it has been more or less a profitable action on the part of major elevens this year. Wash-Jeff, Pitt, New York, all three walloped the Tartans. The only major team unable to get by with a win was West Virginia. But despite all this past punching, and despite the fact that Detroit comes here with a crackerjack line and a triple threat man in the backfield, the Tartans are very likely to go into the game favorites tomorrow, and are just as likely to emerge on the long end of whatever scoring is done.

It will be the final home game of their careers for a number of Tech varsity and second string players, including among the first named, Capt. Anderson, Newt Cowan, Wertenberger, Cooper and English. These chaps will be out there fighting for all they are worth for a victory, and each of them is worth quite a bit.

Detroit comes here with a fairly impressive record even though there are three of four defeats checked against it. The Ford City eleven lost to Army, 6-0, Notre Dame, 21-0, and Toledo, 6-0. But, on the other hand, Michigan Aggies, a fairly powerful Western eleven, was manhandled to the tune of 27-0, and they don't beat the Aggies that badly every day.

Lloyd Brazill is the backfield star and the man around whom the offense is built. He is a fine kicker, passer and bal carrier and is a potent defensive factor. He will doubtlessly cause the Tartans more than a little worry tomorrow.

Tech is in good physical shape for the game. The starting lineup will likely be the same that has started all the games this year, except that Kousman may replace Tony Sweet at right end.

While Tech is entertaining Detroit here, the Durable Dukes of Duquesne will be out of the city, playing their final game of the regular season with Ashland College at Ashland, O. The Red and Blue left town early this morning, will arrive in Ashland late this afternoon and return home directly after the game tomorrow.

Ashland has been well scouted by Duquesne, and has been reported to Coach Elmer Layden as being a powerful team, with a set of good ball-carrying backs and somewhat of an aerial threat in its attack. The line will outweigh the Duke wall to the line.

Undisturbed by the rumors attending the Rose Bowl game bid, which may land in this city, Jock Sutherland is pointing his Pitt Panthers for the Penn State game. This is going to be one tough old ball game for both clubs. There are too many of the boys on each side playing their final college game for it to be anything else. The traditional rivalry existing between State and Pitt, and the fact that in the games of the last two years the Panthers have walloped the Lions, beating them with at least two touchdowns to spare, will tend to make State probably the most dangerous opponent of Pitt's entire season.

PITT NEEDS WIN.

If the Panthers come through this game on top, they will be almost certain to get the East's premier honors. The schedule has been a long and hard one, and the team's record unsurpassed.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 18.—East Washington High, the only unbeaten high school in the tri-state district that has not had a single point scored against it in seven games, will go out of its class this afternoon in its concluding game of the season and tackle Trinity High, of Washington, at the W. & J. Same Ring Saw Tiger's Start and Finish

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—The same ring in which Tiger Flowers made his New York debut also was the scene of the last fight in his colorful career, during which the Georgia deacon and the former middleweight champion of the world earned around a half million dollars.

This was disclosed by Walk Miller, first and only manager of the Georgia Negro, before leaving on the Crescent Limited for Atlanta last night with the body of Flowers, who died after undergoing a minor eye operation.

"The Tiger's first fight here was just like his last," said Miller. "Flowers started against Lee Anderson and kayoed him in the fifth round at the Commonwealth Club in Harlem. His last fight was against Leo Gates, a heavyweight, last Saturday, and Flowers won by a knockout in the fourth round in the same arena. They have changed the name from the Commonwealth Club to the Olympia, but otherwise it is the same place."

Friends and ring notables, including Gene Tunney and Mickey Walker, the man who took the middleweight title from the Negro, paid tribute yesterday to Flowers. Scores visited the funeral parlor where his body was taken after his death at the private hospital of Dr. W. G. Fralick.

Miller not only served as manager for Flowers' fight, but also was adviser to the boxer in other affairs. Miller estimated Flowers earned half a million dollars during seven years in the ring, not deducting expenses and other details involved in about 200 matches.

The body of the former champion will lie in state at the Flowers home in Atlanta on Saturday. The funeral will be held Sunday.

School Elevens Clash For Title Today

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

A MUDDY field, possibly a little rain or snow, and wintry air are in prospect for the football championship of the City League when the machines of Westinghouse High School, triumphant in Section 1, and Oliver High School, victor in Section 11, clash at Forbes Field this afternoon.

With a clean slate, it appears that Coach Burton's Silver Lakers' have an edge on Coach Dennis' Brighton Roaders who have been beaten twice, although only once in a league game.

In its recent battle with Schenley, Oliver showed great strength at times, and if Coach Dennis has been able to bring this out and his team is at the right stage of mind, we suspect that Westinghouse will be given a far greater run for its money than many persons anticipate.

The contest will get under way at 2:30 o'clock.

Turtle Creek Union and Wilkinsburg are primed for their annual encounter, which is carded for Graham Field tomorrow afternoon. Due to injuries, Foxy Miller's eleven has had a tough jaunt of it this season and seems to rate the under-dog on the eve of battle. However, the outcome of a game between such traditional bitter district rivals is a matter for conjecture.

Auto Sales to Gain 40% Next Year, Says Authority

By B. C. FORBES

AMONG the financial geniuses of General Motors is John J. Raskob. He has a penetrating, analytical mind. He prepares all his statements with painstaking care, and although he is not always able immediately to sell his ideas, he is a master salesman and invariably in the end his conclusions are accepted by the other directors and executives.

It will interest you, therefore, to know that Mr. Raskob estimates an increase of 40 per cent in automobile production and sales during 1928.

He figures the coming year's total at 5,000,000 motor vehicles.

Also, he predicts for next year the greatest prosperity America has ever known.

I TALKED with Mr. Raskob the other day and asked him how he figured that automobile sales would jump almost 1,500,000 next year, as his estimate appeared extraordinarily bold.

He pointed out that car sales in 1923 reached 4,080,000, which was almost equal to the total sales for the two previous years combined. In 1926 sales were 4,428,000, and had there been no increase this year in home sales, the gain in exports would have been sufficient to bring this year's total up to 4,600,000. Instead, actual sales will not greatly exceed 3,500,000, because of the protracted shutdown by Ford.

This has meant, therefore, banked-up orders of a million cars. And as the normal life of a car is five years, the replacements during 1928 should be distinctly heavier than they have been in any year heretofore, seeing that the 1923 sales exceeded 4,000,000.

THIS reasoning strikes one as thoroughly sound.

"Everything indicates that 1928 will witness the greatest prosperity our country has ever enjoyed. There is little, if any, inflation anywhere, an abundance of credit, great farm purchasing power as a result of good crops and prices, and a gain of about 40 per cent in automobile sales will add tremendous impetus to otherwise prosperous conditions."

DID you ever stop to analyze the part played by the motor industry in this nation's business activities? Read these impressive statements by this authority:

"Today it is the greatest industry in the world and can be credited largely if not wholly with the prosperity our country and its people are enjoying.

"In 1926 the retail value of automobiles, trucks and parts produced is estimated at six billion dollars. If to this we add the cost of building and maintaining garages all over the country, the cost of new roads built and old roads maintained to meet automobile demands, we quickly reach a total of ten billion dollars of wealth created. Ten billion dollars is just about the average annual value of farm crops in this country during the past four years.

"DOES the creation of ten billion dollars of wealth by the dirt farmer differ in any way from the ten billion dollars of wealth created by reason of the automobile? A farmer digs a hole, plants seed, watches it grow, cultivates and harvests his crops, and thus creates ten billion dollars of wealth. The automobile producer and his suppliers are also farmers who dig holes, pull out bits of ore and coal, fell trees, and create automobiles, good roads, etc., to the value of ten billion dollars.

"THREE AND A THIRD MILLION persons are employed directly in this industry and nearly four hundred thousand indirectly, a total of nearly three-and-three-quarter million people whose livelihood depends upon this one industry.

"It ranks first among the manufacturing industries of the United States in value of its annual output. Last year the automobile industry used: Of hardware lumber, 11 per cent; copper, 13 per cent; iron and steel, 14 per cent; lead, 14 per cent; tin, 21 per cent, aluminum, 25 per cent; nickel, 28 per cent; plate glass, 50 per cent; upholstery leather, 63 per cent; rubber, 85 per cent; while 80 per cent of the gasoline consumed was used by motorists."

RECORD-BREAKING automobile activity next year should, therefore, have a tonic effect upon business and employment throughout the whole country.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The cotton market opened barely steady today at a decline of 7 to 14 points under continuation of recent selling, promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and talk of possible mill curtailment should there be no early improvement in demand for cotton goods. Demand recently noted around 10.50c for January was supplied by liquidation combined with Southern and local selling, and the price declined to 10.25c, while March sold off to 10.43c, or about 13 to 16 points net lower. The market seemed a shade steadier, but was within a point or two of these figures at the end of the first hour.

Private cables said continental buying there had been offset by Belgian and local liquidation, but reported a fair cloth demand from the continent and colonies, and that a smaller Indian crop was expected owing to damage by rains.

The failure of the early break into new low ground to bring out increased liquidation appeared to stimulate reactionary sentiment and bring in considerable covering. Some trade buying also was reported and the market not only recovered its early losses, but still well above yesterday's closing quotations. Prices were within 5 points or two of the best on months, with January selling at 10.48c, or about 8 to 10 points net higher.

HEAVY BUYING LIFTS STOCK PRICES

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP.)—Disregarding the record-breaking volume of brokers' loans, the stock market again forged upward today under the stimulus of heavy buying by operators for the advance. Convinced that the market had not yet felt the full effect of the tremendous reinvestment demand created by the retirement of second Liberty bonds, pools continued to mark up a long list of issues, dividing their energies between low and medium priced motors and specialties and high priced industrials.

Wall street was inclined to place a bullish interpretation on the Philadelphia speech of President Coolidge and on the favorable report on installment buying made by Prof. Seligman, of Columbia University, after an exhaustive survey of the subject undertaken at the direction of the General Motors Corporation. The day's trade news was rather colorless in character, although a few more "Christmas dividends" made their appearance during the day.

General Motors, U. S. Steel common and other so-called pivotal industrials continued to move within a relatively narrow range. Heavy buying of Hupp, Packard and Mack Trucks, all of which recorded substantial gains, featured the motor group. Union Carbide, Midland Steel Products preferred, International Paper, Montgomery-Ward and Freeport-Texas, all of which reached new high ground, also changed hands in rather large volume.

Rails continued to lag, although Norfolk and Western was pushed up to another new peak and considerable activity took place in the Erie preferred issues on unconfirmed reports that the two classes of preferred at present would be replaced with an issue of 6 per cent preferred through an exchange of stock.

The closing was strong. Medium-priced stocks, such as Packard, Hudson Motors, International Paper, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, National Distillers Products and Archer-Daniels were among the numerous industrials which touched the best prices of the session in the final hour. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe was run up more than 11 points and R. H. Macy and Commercial Solvents about 7. Total sales approximated 2,500,000 shares.

Lone Star Leads Local List

Lone Star Gas was the active member of the list on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange during the first half of the session today, but there was not much change in the price, and the stock hovered close to yesterday's final quotation. Other fuel issues were dull. Arkansas was quiet, with early sales at $9 a share.

Trading in the miscellaneous manufacturing group was in odd lots for the most part. National Fireproofing changed hands at 24, unchanged from yesterday's price. Bids were in the market for the newly listed Worthington Ball issues at 25 for the Class A and 6¼ for the Class B. The company manufactures golf balls.

A moderate demand for Standard Sanitary disclosed a scarcity of that issue around current levels and the stock advanced again to the 105 level on a few odd-lot transactions. A small lot of the "new" stock changed hands on the curb at 35½. This represents a price of 106½ for the old shares, which will be split three for one.

In the late market National Fireproofing preferred showed further strength and went into new high ground on the recovery. Several blocks of the stock changed hands between 24⅛ and 25, the buying being attributed to rumors that regular dividend on the issue will be declared at the meeting next month.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—No changes occurred in the raw sugar market early today. The undertone was firm with holders asking 4.73c for Cuban duty paid and buyers inclined to hold off. No sales were reported.

Price changes in raw sugar futures were narrow. The undertone was firm, reflecting the steadiness of the spot situation and the firmer London market. Trading was fairly active, with shorts inclined to cover and some buying by houses with trade and Cuban connections. This was of sufficient volume to absorb the hedge selling and keep prices 1 to 2 points above the previous close throughout the morning session.

In refined there were good withdrawals on old contracts, although new business was light. Prices were unchanged at 5.70 to 5.80c for fine granulated.

HISTORY AND BUSINESS

The business of the Pittsburgh Valve, Foundry & Construction Co., a Pennsylvania Corporation, had its inception in 1825 when A. Spear & Son was founded, and the Company as it exists today consists of A. Spear & Son, Atwood & McCaffrey, founded in 1866, Pipe Department of Wilson-Snyder Manufacturing Company, founded 1885, Shook-Anderson Manufacturing Company, founded 1889, and the Pittsburgh Valve & Machine Company, founded 1898. These old Pittsburgh Companies were either merged or purchased from time to time and the present name was adopted and the present corporation formed in 1900.

The Company conducts a manufacturing business which is the largest of its kind between New York and Chicago. It produces valves for all pressures and all sizes; standard and special fittings for every requirement; a number of specialties in wide use in power plants; general castings of iron, steel, brass and special alloys; and fabricated piping for power and industrial plants. The Company has installed piping and piping systems in all parts of the United States and Canada.

Branch offices are maintained in New York, Boston, Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago, together with representatives in principal cities of the midwest and on the Pacific Coast.

The Company's trade mark and the brand name "Atwood" has been used for twenty-three years and is a recognized mark of quality.

PROPERTY

The plant is located at Pittsburgh, Pa., and covers the greater part of two city blocks, extending along the Pennsylvania Railroad, between 25th and 27th streets, and running from the railroad to the Allegheny river, together with a plot on the opposite side of Railroad Street,, extending to Smallman Street.

The plant and equipment are modern and up to date. Buildings consist of Gray Iron Foundry, Steel Foundry, Brass Foundry, Machine Shop, Pattern Shop, two Pattern Storage Buildings, Blacksmith Shop, Pipe Fabricating Shop, Warehouse and Garage. Sufficient floor space exists in the present buildings to take care of future expansion. Machine tool and handling equipment are adequate to guarantee efficient operation. The plant is served by five sidings from the Pennsylvania Railroad, and one from the B. & O. Railroad.

ASSETS

Net tangible assets, as of September 30, 1927, giving effect to the present financing, after deducting all liabilities other than capital stock, amounted to $2,525,041.17, or approximately $721.43 per share of Preferred Stock.

EARNINGS

The net income available for interest on bonds and dividends on Preferred Stock after all charges, including rent, taxes, interest and depreciation, has averaged $192,330.69 per year for the past ten years. Non-recurring items such as rent and interest, deducted in the above calculations, for the same period averaged $32,292.40. Had the present capital structure then existed and adjustments been made for the $32,292.40 non-recurring items specified above, the income available for Preferred Stock would have averaged $158,623.09, or $45.32 per share for the past ten years. For the last calendar year (1926) on the same basis, net income available was $133,863.73 which is $38.24 per share.

The Company has paid in addition to stock dividends, $766,375.00 in cash dividends on its Common Stock during the last ten years.

EQUITY

This $350,000.00 7% Cumulative Preferred Stock is followed by a total of 52,000 shares of Common Stock. At the market price which has prevailed this would represent an equity of around $1,000,000. The Company has paid a dividend on its Common Stock every year since 1900.

MANAGEMENT

There will be no change in the management or in the policies of the Company.

All matters of legality pertaining to this issue will be approved by Messrs. Calvert, Thompson & Berger for the Company, and J. B. Orr, Esq., for the Bankers. The books have been examined by Messrs Main & Company, Certified Public Accountants, and properties appraised by the Manufacturers Appraisal Company.

STEBLER—On Wednesday, November 16, 1927, at 7 a. m., OLIVER J. STEBLER, husband of Margaret O'Hagan Stebler and father of William J., Oliver J., Jr., and Margaret M. Stebler. Funeral from the family home, 4542 Friendship avenue, on Saturday, November 19, at 9:30 a. m. High mass of requiem at St. Mary's Church, Forty-sixth street, at 10 o'clock.

TERRY—On Friday, November 18, 1927, at 12:15 a. m., JENNIE TERRY, widow of William F. Terry. Funeral services at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. J. A. Emanuel, 19 Sampson street. Notice of time later.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of my mother, Mrs. Fanny Rodgers, who died one year ago today.

The moon and stars are shining upon a lonely grave;
There sleeps our dear mother we lost and could not save.
We often sit and think of you and speak of how you died;
To think you could not say goodby before you closed your eyes.
For all of us you did your best;
May God grant you eternal rest.

AC Electric Radio

Without the uncertainty of untried apparatus

And without any sacrifice in quality of reception

There are two ways you can own an AC receiver. One is to discard your present radio set and buy a new and untried receiver, using a new and untried type of tube, at a sacrifice of quality of reception.

The other way is simply to add Balkite Electric "AB" to your present radio set. Balkite Electric "AB" replaces both "A" and "B" batteries and supplies radio power from the light socket. Entirely batteryless, it makes any standard set an electric receiver.

With this method there is no sacrifice in reception. For it makes possible the use of the standard type of set and of standard type tubes, both of which are tried and proved and give by far the clearest and truest reproduction. There is no waiting for tubes to warm up. No difficulty in controlling volume. No noise, no AC hum. No crackling, no booming, no blasting. Instead the same high standard of reception to which you are accustomed.

And if you already own a radio set, the cost of equipping it with Balkite is only a fraction of the cost of buying a new receiver.

By all means go to AC reception. Its convenience is the greatest radio improvement you could buy. But let your AC receiver be a standard radio set equipped with Balkite Electric "AB."

Two models, $64.50 and $74.50.

Ask your dealer. Fansteel Products Co., Inc., North Chicago, Illinois.

Licensed under Andrews-Hammond patent

Balkite "A"

Just like Balkite "AB" but for the "A" circuit only. Enables owners of a "B" eliminator to make an electric installation at very low cost. $35.00.

BEING A FAMOUS WOMAN'S HUSBAND

THE only thing that is happening to Lyle Womack is that he had to sit alone in his room at the St. Regis Hotel and be a famous woman's husband. He said he was embarrassed, but he needn't be. He has plenty of company.

WHEN anybody calls up in Hollywood and asks for Mr. Gloria Swanson, the Marquis de la Falaise does not turn a hair. Womack will get used to it. They all do. He must become accustomed to being called Mr. Ruth Elder.

WHICH takes us back to the good old days of Mrs. Pankhurst and her brick-throwing suffragette daughters, when modern feminism is admitted to have had its start. During all those years, when Emmeline and her olive branches were hurling Irish confetti at Prime Ministers and breaking windows in Downing street, did anybody hear a word about Mr. Pankhurst? Not a whisper.

Yet there really must have been a Mr. Pankhurst, even though nobody ever heard his first name. We presume he must have been a human being, with a human being's hopes and ambitions, yet, when any man marries a woman like Emmeline, he must prepare to crawl in a hole and pull the hole in after him. His publicity approximates that received by a black walnut in a colored man's pocket at midnight.

Some families hold a famous husband and a famous wife—but not if the wife gets famous first, if you get what I mean, and if you don't it doesn't make any difference.

THERE is a Lord Astor, in spite of some doubts which may have been entertained to the contrary. He is a rather pleasant chap and his name is Waldorf and he has enough money to allow him to eat dinner at night, but, so far as fame is concerned, he might as well be running a chicken farm in the wilds of Australia or living in an igloo in Baffin Land.

If his lordship should start out right now and fly around the world in a non-stop airplane trip, breaking all records, the papers would headline it as follows:

"Lady Astor's Husband Wins World Flight."

"Husband of Lady Astor Takes Honors Modestly."

"Parliament Lauds Lady Astor on Husband's Feat."

You see, that is all because Lady Astor got famous first. Waldorf is remembered chiefly because he sounds like the hotel. Douglas Fairbanks fooled them. He got famous before he married Mary.

THE story is yet told of the reporter who, several years ago, called at Maria Jeritza's apartment and asked to see Mr. Jeritza. Baron Popper took it gracefully right between the eyes. He has been a famous woman's husband so long that he is used to it.

Mary Garden has no husband and no one would know it if she had. That overpowering personality, just lately arrived from Europe, could make an obscure and unknown husband out of a Mussolini.

There are thousands of famous women's husbands and they occupy their time in different ways. Some of them collect canceled postage stamps, some try to train fleas and some go in for domino or chess championships.

Harold F. McCormick has found a new way. He has so say the reports, become tired of being Mr. Ganna Walska and has started proceedings for a divorce. Few famous women's husbands are that courageous.

Nobody ever heard what happened to Mr. Winslow, whose wife made the soothing syrup, and Mr. Lydia Pinkham will go down in history as one of the world's champ mysteries.

BEING A FAMOUS WOMAN'S HUSBAND

THE only thing that is happening to Lyle Womack is that he had to sit alone in his room at the St. Regis Hotel and be a famous woman's husband. He said he was embarrassed, but he needn't be. He has plenty of company.

WHEN anybody calls up in Hollywood and asks for Mr. Gloria Swanson, the Marquis de la Falaise does not turn a hair. Womack will get used to it. They all do. He must become accustomed to being called Mr. Ruth Elder.

WHICH takes us back to the good old days of Mrs. Pankhurst and her brick-throwing suffragette daughters, when modern feminism is admitted to have had its start. During all those years, when Emmeline and her olive branches were hurling Irish confetti at Prime Ministers and breaking windows in Downing street, did anybody hear a word about Mr. Pankhurst? Not a whisper.

Yet there really must have been a Mr. Pankhurst, even though nobody ever heard his first name. We presume he must have been a human being, with a human being's hopes and ambitions, yet, when any man marries a woman like Emmeline, he must prepare to crawl in a hole and pull the hole in after him. His publicity approximates that received by a black walnut in a colored man's pocket at midnight.

Some families hold a famous husband and a famous wife—but not if the wife gets famous first, if you get what I mean, and if you don't it doesn't make any difference.

THERE is a Lord Astor, in spite of some doubts which may have been entertained to the contrary. He is a rather pleasant chap and his name is Waldorf and he has enough money to allow him to eat dinner at night, but, so far as fame is concerned, he might as well be running a chicken farm in the wilds of Australia or living in an igloo in Baffin Land.

If his lordship should start out right now and fly around the world in a non-stop airplane trip, breaking all records, the papers would headline it as follows:

"Lady Astor's Husband Wins World Flight."

"Husband of Lady Astor Takes Honors Modestly."

"Parliament Lauds Lady Astor on Husband's Feat."

You see, that is all because Lady Astor got famous first. Waldorf is remembered chiefly because he sounds like the hotel. Douglas Fairbanks fooled them. He got famous before he married Mary.

THE story is yet told of the reporter who, several years ago, called at Maria Jeritza's apartment and asked to see Mr. Jeritza. Baron Popper took it gracefully right between the eyes. He has been a famous woman's husband so long that he is used to it.

Mary Garden has no husband and no one would know it if she had. That overpowering personality, just lately arrived from Europe, could make an obscure and unknown husband out of a Mussolini.

There are thousands of famous women's husbands and they occupy their time in different ways. Some of them collect canceled postage stamps, some try to train fleas and some go in for dumino or chess championships.

Harold F. McCormick has found a new way. He has so say the reports, become tired of being Mr. Ganna Walska and has started proceedings for a divorce. Few famous women's husbands are that courageous.

Nobody ever heard what happened to Mr. Winslow, whose wife made the soothing syrup, and Mr. Lydia Pinkham will go down in history as one of the world's champ mysteries.

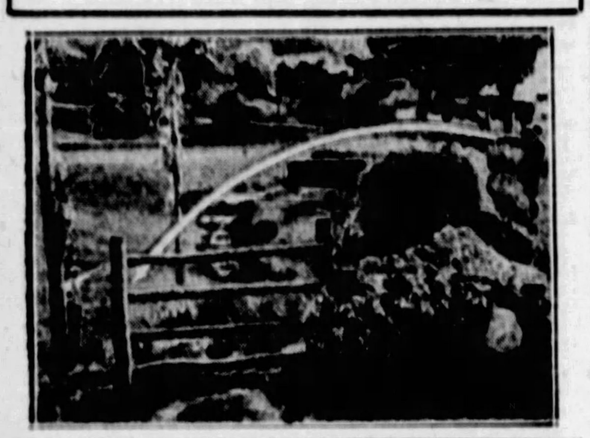
Two Great Powers—Fear and Hope

A Stag's 32-Foot Jump



THE LINE AND ARROW SHOW A 32-FOOT JUMP MADE BY A FRIGHTENED DEER.

Three mainsprings are in us at birth and govern us through life. They are:

Love of life.

Love of children.

Love of success, or ambition.

FEAR expresses love of life, the dread of losing it.

HOPE expresses love of life, the intensity of joy in living it.

Great power is in hope. It took Columbus across the ocean going west, and Lindbergh across the ocean going east.

Fear holds criminals in check, dangling the noose or pointing to the electric chair. FEAR plays a great part in many religions, making those good that would be bad, through dread of hell and what they believe will happen to them.

HOPE is a power GREATER than fear, for under the influence of hope the mind works clearly, under the influence of fear it is poisoned.

Under the influence of hope we work to ATTAIN something. Under the influence of fear we strive only to AVOID something.

Hope of what is to come hereafter enables millions patiently to endure lives of sorrow, hardships and dull labor here on earth.

Hope of immortality and love of country take the soldier to the cannon's mouth.

And that "hope that springs eternal in the human breast" makes life bearable for millions that without it would be miserably unhappy.

Fear also has a great stimulating power, and this picture illustrates it.

The distance covered by the animal as he jumped is thirty-two feet. At the far side of the jump there was a drop of twelve feet to the ground. The stag landed successfully, not losing his footing, and rushed on—to safety, let us hope; free from the teeth of the pursuing dogs.

Englishmen, full grown, dressed in their scarlet coats, pursue a frightened animal, dogs terrify it, and those men are actually proud of themselves.

A day will come, in our civilization, when a man terrifying defenseless creatures because he finds pleasure in their suffering will be classed not far above the cannibal eating his next-door neighbor.

Tax Prize Ring to Death

Secretary Mellon, arguing that the government's admission tax should not be repealed, says that "the men and women who are willing to pay $40 a seat for 30 minutes of boxing at the recent Tunney-Dempsey fight could well afford to contribute $3.60 more to the United States government."

The objection to the tax on prize fight admission is that it is not high enough. It ought to be made high enough to tax prize fighting out of existence.

That would be a very good and effective way to get rid of professional prize fighting in this country. There should have been a 500 per cent tax on Dempsey-Tunney tickets, so that the buyer of the $40 ticket would have been obliged to pay $240 for it, the extra $200 going to the government.

Such a 500 per cent levy would not be very productive from the viewpoint of the tax gatherer, for it would very quickly kill prize fighting and no prize fight admissions taxes would be collected. That would be the purpose of the legislation—to end prize fighting and not to make more money out of it.

The truth is that it is disgraceful for the government to be making money out of these degrading exhibitions. Every dollar it collects serves as evidence that it authorizes and approves the exhibition. It becomes a sort of a partner in it by sharing its profits.

The Congressional tax revision committees, now meeting, have an opportunity to end prize fighting by taxing the profits out of it.

Increase in Divorces

The Department of Commerce has discovered that the increase in divorces in this country is more than two and a half times the increase in marriages. The department wonders why.

There are seventeen hundred reasons. The first reason for the rapid increase in the number of divorces is dissatisfaction brought on directly or indirectly by the high cost of luxuries—and the other 1,699 reasons don't count.

The Hearst Papers Advocate:

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and to promote the peace of the world.
2. Proportional representation in the United States Senate, no state to have less than two Senators. Legislation to enforce prompt constitutional reapportionment in the House of Representatives.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal powers to abolish illiteracy in the United States under a Secretary of Education.
5. Election of Congress in November. Installation on the 1st of January following. Inauguration of the President 1st of January next after November election.

Yea, Verily! Times Have Changed

Garrett P Serviss Says:

Light Losing Speed!

THE astonishing suggestion has been published in a French astronomical journal of standing, "L'Astronomie," that the velocity of light is decreasing!

As well, almost, affirm that the universe is dissolving and about to fall to pieces as that light, the universal messenger, is losing its paces, which were assumed by a very self-confident theory to have attained the highest speed possible to anything in existence. Be sure that if light is losing speed, science is in for a tumble. And the deepest fall of all will be that of Einsteinism.

However, I do not believe that light is losing speed. But let us see the basis of the assertion that it is. M. Gheury de Bray has been studying the variant results of scientific measurements of the velocity of light, which, excepting the rather rough determinations made by observation of the eclipse of Jupiter's satelites after 1675, do not date back beyond 1849.

Beginning with 1849 there have been nine measurements, cited by M. de Bray. There is no exact record between them, but a general agreement that light moves in open space at a speed very near 300,000 kilometers per second. The Einstein theory assumes that this is the ne plus ultra of velocity in the universe, and that it is precisely the same to all observers everywhere, no matter whether they themselves are moving or not, or in what direction they are moving. That assumption is at the basis of the famous "Relativity" theory.

Stress should be put upon the statement that this fundamental velocity of light exists only in open space, since observation has proved that light is slowed in passing through gases or liquids. Its speed is only three-fourths as fast in water as in air, and only two-thirds as fast in glass as in air. It is not of any delay of that kind that M. de Bray is thinking, but of a real decrease of velocity in unimpeded space, at an average rate of about four kilometers a year.

Looking at M. de Bray's table of successive measurements, beginning with 1849 and ending with 1926, we find that the first three are so discordant that no trustworthy conclusion could be based upon a comparison between them. Beginning, however, with the fourth, made in 1871, we find that there are six in succession which show a progressive decrease—I will not say in the velocity of light but in the figures representing the results of the measurements of that velocity. This can best be shown by tabulating thus:

1871	300,400	Kilometers
1902	299,895	"
1906	299,880	"
1924	299,802	"
1926	299,796	"

Here we see that in the course of 55 years the velocity per second indicated by the measurements has decreased 604 kilometers. This is about 11 kilometers per year instead of 4, but the rate of variation is widely discordant as shown by comparison of the intervals between the measurements, the yearly rate running as high as 33 between 1871 and 1885, and as low as 3 between 1924 and 1926.

Independent of the uncertainty and discrepancy of the figures, and the purely hypothetical nature of the assumption that light is losing speed, there are fundamental reasons for profound incredulity on the subject. But, if the new measurement now to be made at Mount Wilson by Professor Michelson should show another decrease in the figures, one would have to think about it, though still there would be no proof of this remarkable hypothesis.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

There Are Reasons

THAT neighbor of yours who does not drop in to see you as often as you might wish may cherish good feeling for you, but has other ways she prefers to spend her time.

Possibly the man next door does not come over to sit on your porch and visit with you because he spends so much time in his place of employment.

He may need and desire the relaxation he finds best at home.

Visiting with you or with anyone calls for effort.

He would have to meet certain requirements.

He hasn't a thing against you and he and his wife would enjoy your society if conditions were right with them.

It is likely they have friends about the city who demand all the time they can spare for social matters.

Why should they take on any more?

There may be good reasons for that apparent lack of sociability in your neighborhood, so don't force yourself upon these persons.

Tales That Are Told

Toddler's Menu

"WELL," cried the doctor in his best bedside manner, "and how is the poor sufferer today?"

"Not as cheerful as you," replied his patient in a nasty tone.

"Did you take the medicine I sent along?"

"Yes, and brutal stuff it was!"

The doctor smiled.

"And the diet?" he said. "Remember, I said you were to eat only what could be digested by a child. Did you follow my instructions?"

"Oh, yes, doctor," was the weary answer. "I had a couple of mouthfuls of mud, a boot button and a chunk of orange peel!"

Unexpected

A RATHER deaf woman found herself sitting beside a well-known surgeon at a social dinner. He was not a talkative man, and try as she might, the old lady could not think of any conversation.

At last she had an idea.

"Should I call you Dr. Dobbs or Mr. Dobbs?" she asked, with a charming smile.

"Call me anything you like," replied the doctor, and added genially: "Some of my friends call me an old fool."

"Ah," she rejoined, not hearing correctly, "but anxious to be pleasant, "those are the people who know you intimately, of course!"

Something to Think About

By BRUNO LESSING

Democracy and Happiness

TWO able philosophers, Will Durant and Bertrand Russell, recently debated the subject of Democracy. Mr. Durant, of the U. S. A., did not think much of practical democracy. Mr. Russell, of England, thought very highly of it. Needless to say they fought with soft gloves.

In one of the early rounds Mr. Russell said:

"If you compare the happiness of the average citizen in your country with the happiness of the average citizen of past times, or of undemocratic countries, it is hardly possible to resist the conclusion that democracy has been a contributing factor in the general distribution of the welfare."

Mr. Russell would be surprised!

The only people who derive happiness from a democracy are those who fight to establish a democracy and succeed. There is always a certain amount of happiness in getting what you are after. The early Americans who licked the British were happy because they licked them.

After a democracy is established and falls into the natural order of things, it ceases to have any relation to individual happiness. You take it for granted and do not bother about it. Very few people derive happiness from the enjoyment of perfect health excepting at the time when they recover from an illness.

If the sun were to shine brightly 365 days in the year you would get so accustomed to it that it would not add to your happiness. You derive much more happiness from the sun when you haven't seen it for a month.

No, you cannot link happiness with democracy. The inhabitants of every city and village in Germany and Austria, in the monarchical days, led a happier life than is led today in any town from New York to San Francisco, from Duluth to Galveston. Not a more prosperous one, mind you, but merely a happier one. They were so happy that they sang and danced and rejoiced in public. And you didn't have to belong to a church or buy tickets.

The writer recently returned from Italy and England—both monarchies. There is more happiness in those countries than we enjoy. Neither debt nor unemployment in England nor Mussolini's drastic reforms in Italy have crushed the spirit of happiness.

Happiness is entirely a matter of soul and temperament. Many a slave in olden times has been happier than many a millionaire today.

You might, possibly, link happiness with ignorance or with license or with any form of freedom of the spirit. But you cannot link it with democracy.

The majority of the American public have not enough interest in the cause of democracy to take the trouble to grasp its problems, or even to vote on election day. They derive their happiness from various mild forms of dissipation, such as musical comedies, professional baseball, prize fights, horse racing, etc. Or from the pleasure of inflicting their views upon their fellow-beings. Or from making money.

That's just about what Croesus did, in a monarchy, many centuries ago.

New York Day by Day

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—Thoughts while strolling: What ever became of soft-shoe hoofers who danced with hands on their hips? And wore colored silk hats. Those impish faces with defiant mouths. The Englishmen who carry canes with leather loops. And wear wing collars with polka-dot ties.

Swank imported cars with half-canopy coverings—and self-conscious occupants. Jim Churchill, the ex-cafe man. A crate of white-faced calves. James Murray Allison, dean of New York newspaper correspondents. The old blind couple who sing in cracked voices, holding hands.

The shimmy dancer who now carries a lorgnette. Francis X. Hope, the sage of Great Neck. And seems fearfully bored with the bourgeoisie—fearfully. Dollar shirt store proprietors who wear $10 shirts. H. L. Mencken with a brief case. The shirt-sleeved men who sit in those portable construction huts smoking pipes. Helen Morgan.

The Fashionable Fifties. Where class crackles. And almost every apartment house has a specialist in neurology. Chauffeurs with those tiny tightly-coiled mustaches. And nurses chattering to children in French. Snappily uniformed florist boys with brightly labeled boxes.

Doormen who eye strangers as so many intruders. Modiste and millinery shops without signs. Doors carved with forgotten imagery. Gothic windows. Mother of pearl push buttons. One of those "If I may say so" butlers strolling with four Persian cats on a yellow leash. Gene Fowler, a star reporter.

And a dip into Second avenue, where life is real and rugged. Chronic fire and bankrupt sales. Shawled women with shoulder baskets of fire chips. Children sewed in their clothes for the winter. Red noses, shaggy mustaches and gin breaths.

Squeaky graphophones in upstair flats. Sullen dog-tired men coming home from work. Curb pitch men shouting their wonders. Neighborhood cigar stores with backroom gambling games. And westward Broadway flashes its luminous lure to joy.

* * *

At a dinner party the other evening there was an insufferable actor who seemed bored with everything—including food and conversation. He sat glumly through the meal and excused himself abruptly at the finish.

"What's the matter with him?" inquired a guest of the hostess.

Gadding about with so-called artistic people gives most regular people a distinct pain in the neck. The gods or goddesses are more or less a nuisance for the simple reason they cannot bear conversation save about themselves. And their artistic triumphs are scarcely worth noticing. Men who build skyscrapers, dig tunnels and span bridges over rivers can rarely be induced to discuss their work, and yet some who achieve two lines in a play or flash a few seconds across the screen are overcome with the idea the world is revolving solely about them. The movie people, it seems to me, lead in this egotism. That is because, no doubt, many become conscious that whatever their achievement, it is largely the art of the director. Freudians would explain it as the inferiority complex at its worst.

There is the story of Commander Peary sitting around a theatrical club one evening listening to the personal triumphs of this player and that. Finally when he could stifle yawns no longer, he departed.

"Peary, who discovered the North Pole."

"O, him!" was the reply—and the player continued his story of how he made them tear up their chairs in Scranton.

While waiting in a barber shop this afternoon a gentleman in the chair next to me inquired if I smoked. I told him I did and waited expectantly for at least one of those cigars that get way to a running start up one side. He handed me a pamphlet showing 12 different ways to clean a pipe with a new contraption. That's all right. But what's the idea in making a sap of me all the time?

Hair Worth $10,000

By DR. FRANK CRANE

An American millionaire is said to have offered $10,000 for a lock of Beethoven's hair, now in the possession of a singing society in Hungary.

This gives us a helpful thought and we hope will be a remunerative suggestion.

No man can tell when he is going to be famous or how famous he will be. It behooves him, therefore, to save all his personal belongings, as they may be of financial assistance to his heirs.

When he goes to the barber shop he ought to have his extra hair, that has been cut off, preserved. This accumulation of surplus hair 100 years after he is gone may be worth considerable money, if he happens to acquire fame.

His wife also should carefully look after his old clothes and not give them away, but put them in the safe deposit vault, so that in after years his great-great-grandchildren may benefit from them.

Some fool millionaire with more money than he knows what to do with may want to buy a set of these clothes so that he can go around in the clothes of the famous Mr. Thingumbob.

The house is full now of junk nobody wants, but think of whom it belongs to!

We sign many letters every day carelessly and dispense our autographs without any notion of what they are worth. Some day a man may come along and offer $10,000 for our well-night illegible writing.

We once knew a man who took music lessons from one who lived on the same street where Johann Sebastian Bach lived. He never failed to remind us of his solitary claim to fame.

We should read and take to heart the words of Robert Browning, who said:

"Ah, did you once see Shelley plain
And did he stop and speak to you,
And did you speak to him again.
How strange it seems, and new!"

Perhaps somebody some day will go around bragging that they spoke to us one time or picked up a pair of old shoes in our back yard.

Who knows?

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Life

WHAT is this life which men so greatly prize above all other treasures that they give wealth, joy, truth, honor in their fellow's eyes; give all with gladness that they may but live? Too many hold that life is but to be, to drag through dull existence, day on day; content with ignorance and poverty of mind and soul they wear drap years away. But there are those who ask the brimming cup, who want not dregs, but sweet and potent wine, and the elixir that their lips would sup must hold some essence that is part divine. True life is growth. Unless from hour to hour you gain in all the attributes of worth, in kindliness, in patience, peace and power, you do not live, although you walk the earth.

Right Angles

Thanks-Please

WERE you ever incarcerated in an alleged home where the little courtesies of life, those pansies and butterflies of social relationship, were forgotten?

And didn't it occur to you that the North Pole was Hades hot compared to that home?

The social amenities of cultured life are a joy boon to jaded spirits.

God help the treadmill wife whose most carefully prepared dinner only elicits a masculine grunt and to whom "please" or "thanks" would sound like the rare bell notes of a nightingale!

In some of the God-neglected corners of domesticity there may still be found a male shrew who considers a "thank-you" superfluous because his wife has only done her duty.

For such gorillas we might suggest shooting at sunrise but that in such a home there is no sunrise.

And that little one syllable "please" is the only difference.

No child is too young to hear these two courteous words, "thanks" and "please," and no child is ever so young as to give the parents the right to omit them.

Courtesy is the rudiments of diplomacy and when a child is reared amidst the glad surroundings of these little pansies and butterflies, his early teens finds him already equipped with the open sesame of success.

There is a great deal of trudge and drab in this world. Why not let in a little song and glory by simply being polite?
